I walk through today
With an ever-rising sun
And wonder
Where I walk
Searching for worlds
Apart
From my day to day obscurity.
Dawn drives me
Because the day is so short
And I must know
So many things.
Do I necessitate knowledge?
Is beauty merely
A creature of my imagination?
Must I relinquish
Part of myself
To love
When today's gain
May be tomorrow's loss?
Is the totality
The dust of Death?

Yet I must live, love, know
And I grow:
A well cropped bush in a hedge.
I see flower children
Metamorphosed
By thin smoke
Until
Life transforms into a count
Of Tibetan prayer beads.
So I pour myself into a beer bottle—
Escape
Offering only escape.

And escape I must
From a thousand days
Of discovering how little I know
And wondering the worth
Of learning that the entropy
Of the universe is increasing
Or how many treaties
Make American history.

The older generation questions my seeking,
Condemns my morals,
Decries against my apathy
Toward a war I did not create
But must fight.
They
Seek to suspend me
Until I am lost in Time
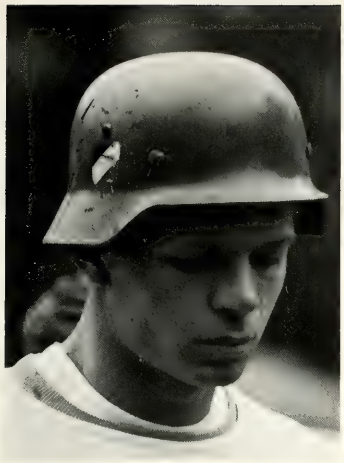
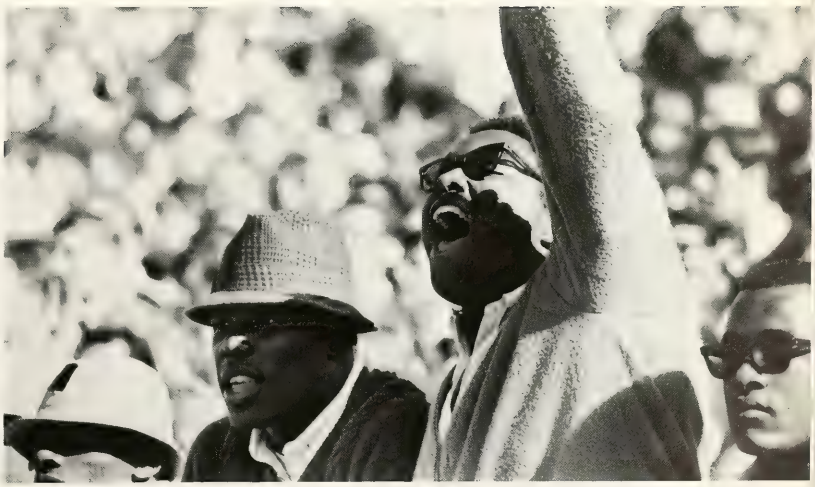
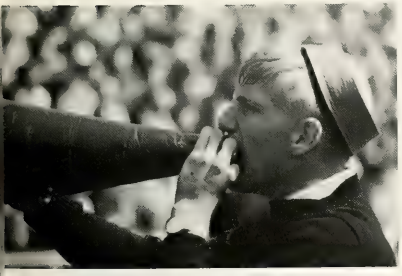
While life sleeps on.
Am I merely a sleepwalker—
The hour hand on a clock,
Or the alarm
Which will awaken the world?





But I am not yet ready
For I have too many diminutive achievements
To accomplish,
Too many questions
To answer.
So I strive
To sense, feel, and comprehend
All that belongs to my
Limited domain;
To prepare for the tomorrow
When I must stand in the world.



PIE

ONE WAY
ONE WAY

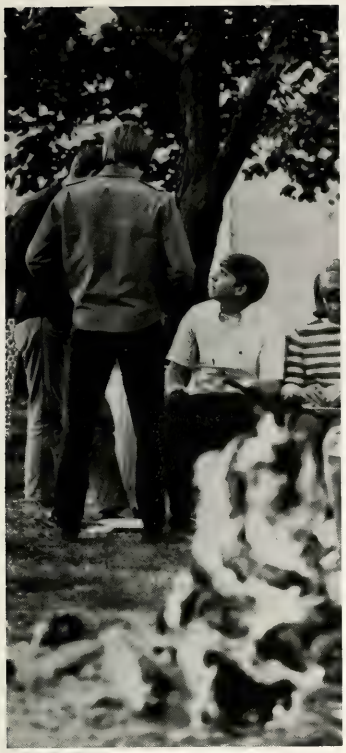
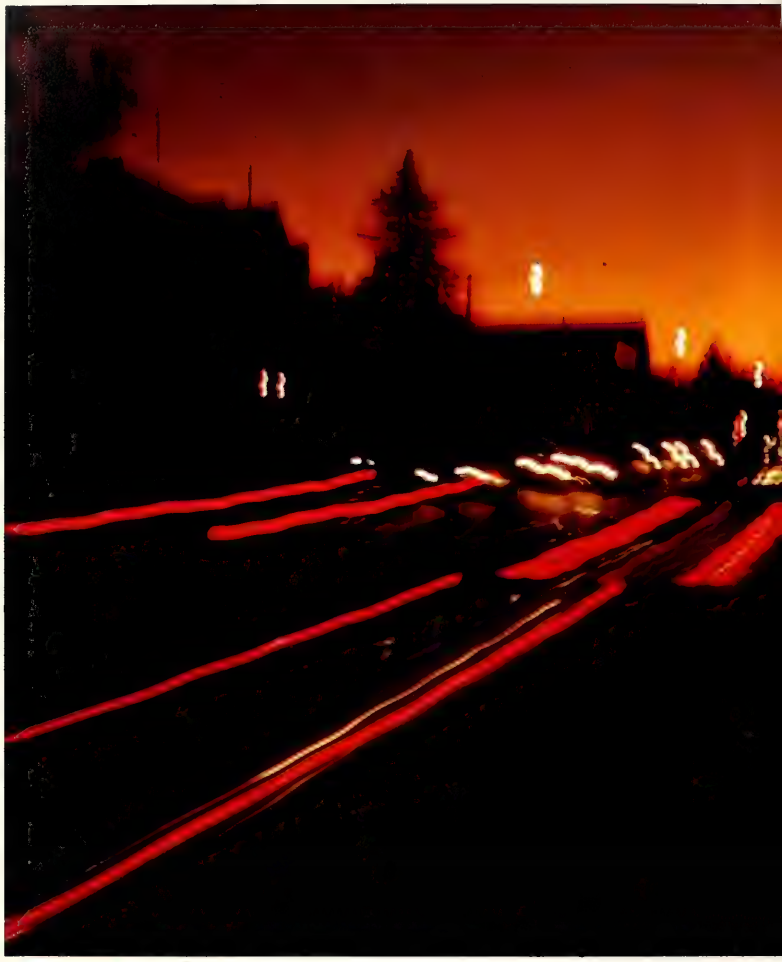
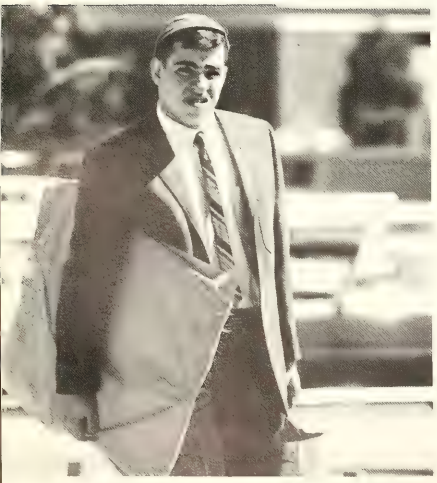
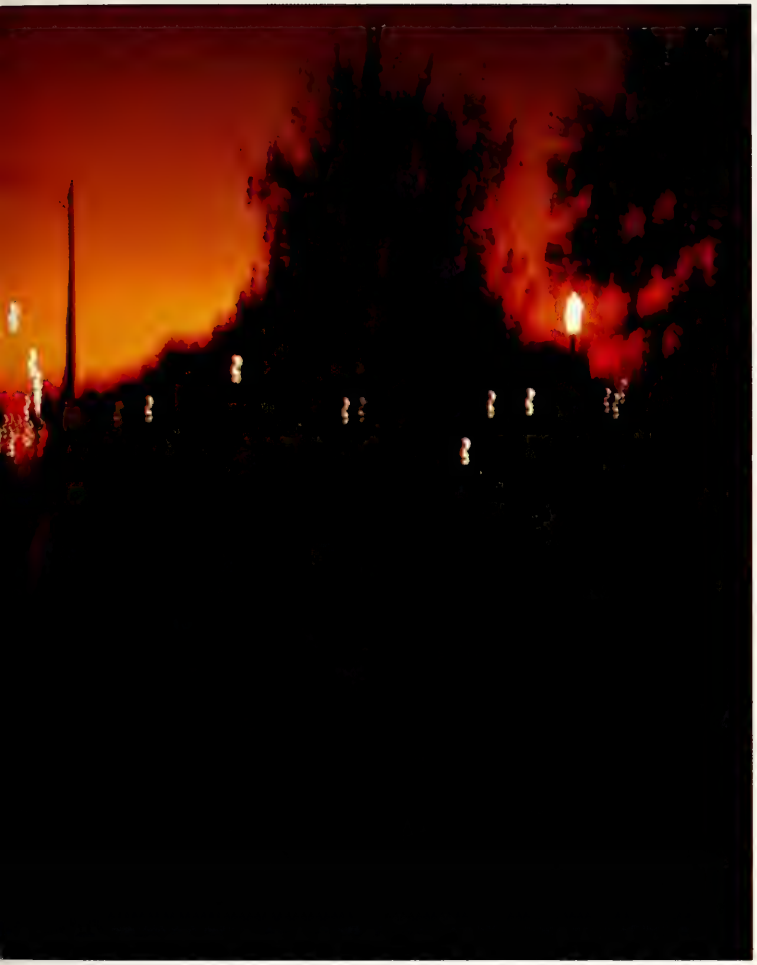
So with curiousity
Tinged with cynicism,
I wander through the tomorrow
that is today.



Autumn sweeps in
With football-blue skies
And rustling leaves.
The cool wind ruffles my hair
And leafs through my books.
The classroom hours
Which will grow so long
Are now just right
To satiate
My annual newborn dedication,
Which will dull only with time
And C's
And all nighters
And watching the children
Climb the flaming tree
Outside the window,
Mocking me,
Because they haven't learned.







Identifiable
By that "what's going on?"
Look,
Freshmen pass me
Forming a bobbing green sea
Of newness.
I watch them,
Amused at the Awkward abandon
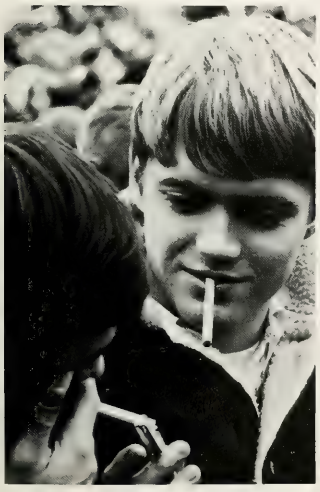
Of the uninitiated—
And yet . . .



A freshman, who has just learned
All those stories were true
And is no longer green
But has changed as the season,
Slips furtively by
Seeking a brief respite,
Thinking he invented it.

And I zip my jacket a few more inches
As the pristine night settles
With a cold beauty.
I take the warm hand, and we walk
In silence, for fear of waking God . . .
Walking in full view of the universe
Feeling that because we are together,
It must approve.

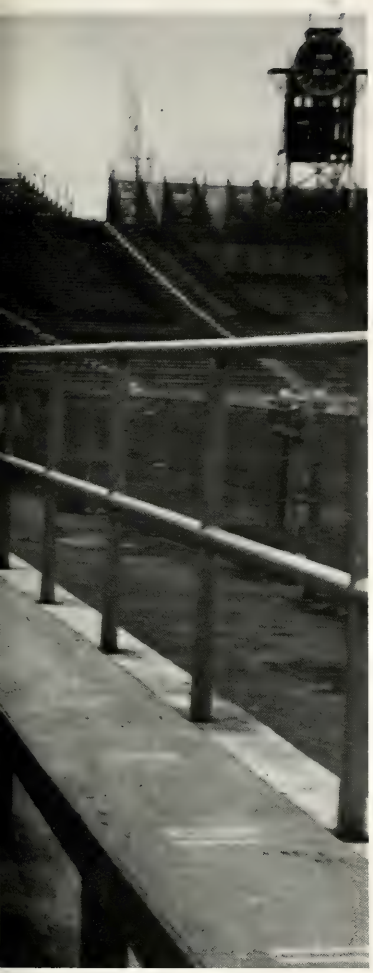
Wind with a touch of winter
Makes me shiver
With anticipation—
Exhilaration.
Cheerleaders scream "victory"
And the surge of the crowd
Carries me to my feet,
Hoarsely shouting, until my heart
Catches in my throat—
Straining for those last few savage inches—
Cheering, as billowing streamers
Tell the tale of touchdown
And moments not soon forgotten.

The big men cease their struggle,
The battle is won;
The agony and grace, forgotten.
Two aspirants collide
And one must fall,
For trying only guarentees
That failure is possible.
The street is one way—
Uphill.

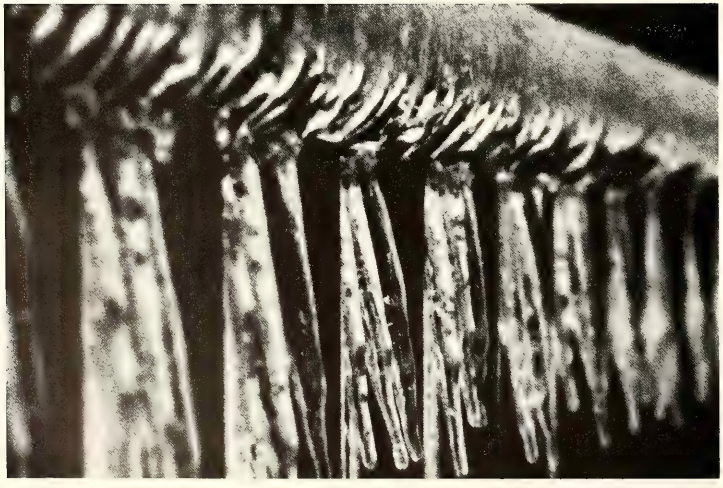
Where do entertainers,
Leaders
Derive the ability to sway the whole,
To rise above?
The appeal of a Goldwater,
The genius of an Issac Stern,
The perfection of the American Ballet
Theatre
Draw me to see
Why . . .

What drive
Pushes Jack Benny into the spotlight?
Does perseverance promise this greatness
Or does it lie in the creative genius
Of Ray Charles
And the inborn talent of Lanie Kazan?
And isn't culture
More than just a journey into refinement . . .
A means by which
I can observe,
Disseminate,
And carry something away.

In groups of twos, threes and thousands
The stadium disgorges its contents.
The momentum ushers me out:
To walk alone among the many—
To stride briskly along avenues of honey red and brown—
To gaze at brilliant blue sky
And dying sun
Which will soon depart.
I feel the empty warmth of open houses and parties
Which vibrate across the campus,
Perceiving a change,
And wondering if it's only
Me.



Howling winds
Strip the last remnants of autumn
From the trees.
Frost grows like cancer
On my windowpane.
The world is very dark.
And I— 1899860
I mature as the wine-colored leaves
. . . did . . .
And like them,
I sense the earth
Awaiting my return,
Feeling a creeping chill of fear
As awesome forces rage around me,
Knowing the loneliness
Of a lighthouse
Surrounded by pounding seas
On a stormy night.



Soft snow sifts slowly down,
A muffling mantle covering the tired ground.
The reality of a tree
Reduced to a stark silhouette
Makes me apprehensive of Any reality.
Snowflakes exhibit
The transient quality of their being
At my touch.
And like them
Am I
A snowman,
Apparent, nice to have around?
The only question is Why? . . .

On winter nights
Somewhere in a fireplace
Or maybe
Lost in the red light half way up the Christmas tree,
The glow blurs.
I find God,
Feeling a communion that fills me
And am overwhelmed
By the power of the cross,
Which changed the world
By an act of Love.

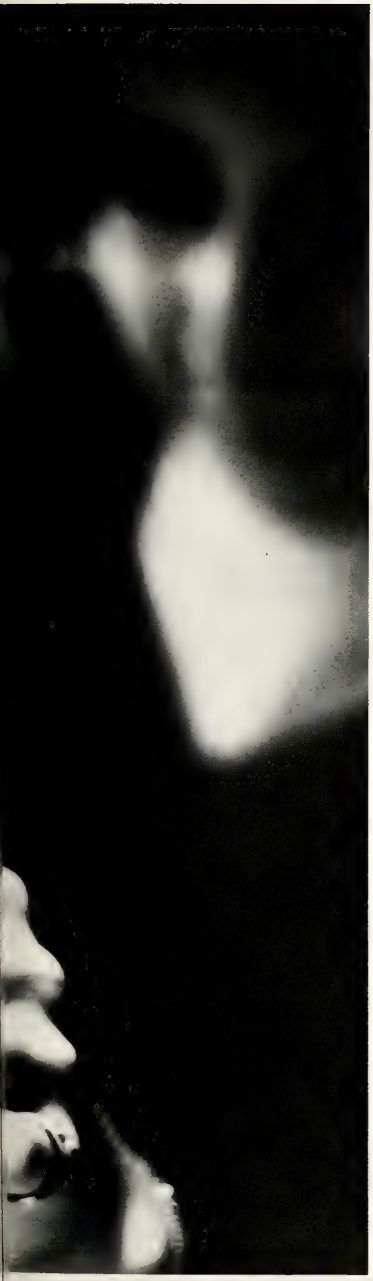
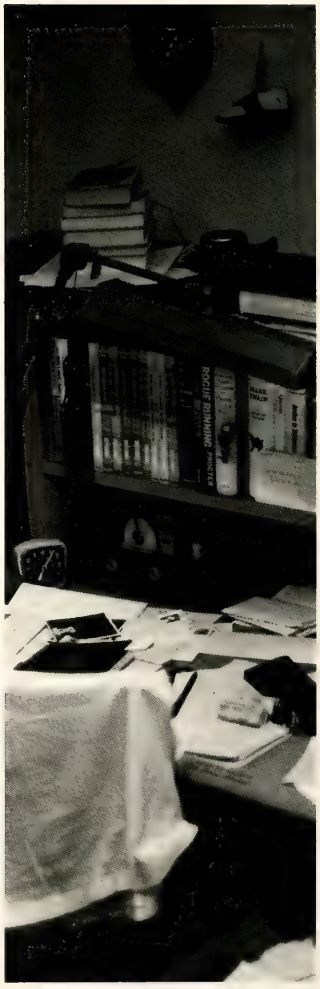
Somewhere inside
Tinsel, colored lights,
And department store Santa
Clauses
Lies
A spirit of endless love
In a forgetful age.



Twelve o'clock: Coffee sustains my final push . . .
The window beckons but the books demand.
One o'clock: A yawn dims my lighted corner of the room
And frustrated sleep
Slowly weakens my drive.
Two o'clock: The street cleaner swishes by,
And I wonder where he's going,
Thinking maybe he sees my light
And wonders where I'm going . . . so do I,
But I appreciate the distraction.
Three o'clock: Maybe I am beginning to grasp,
But I am too tired to know such things
And my mind, the inexhaustible sieve,
Is becoming saturated.
Three thirty: Forget it—
Time to rack and dream that this week will soon go by.



NO PROBLE

IT CAN'T BE

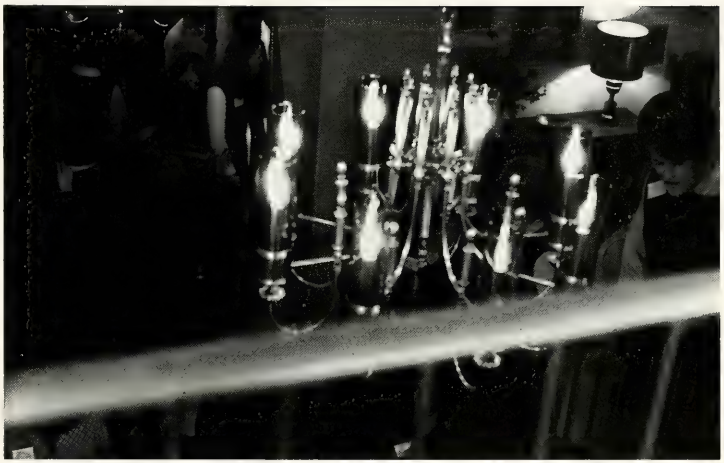
Another semester slips past;
With pressure gone,
The season is holiday;
Worry—
The enemy.
Forgetting this old place
And rejoining friends
Important in the yesterday
Of time
Is the credo.

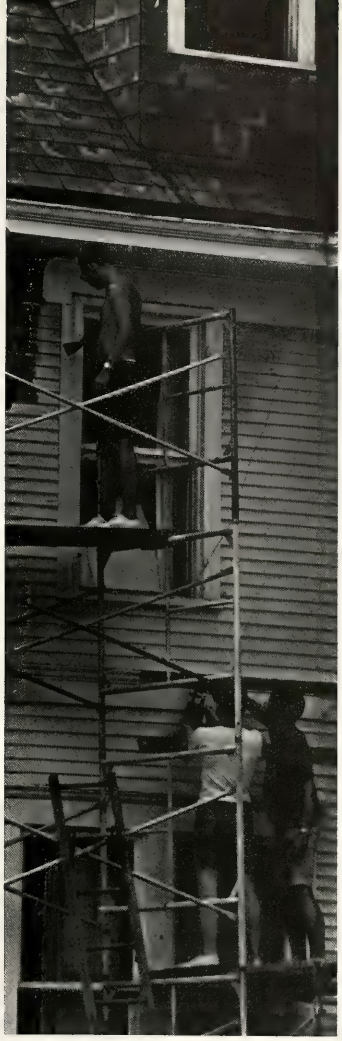
Excitement,
Parties when continued
Become dull;
Maybe even studying
Would be better.
But rain-laden umbrellas of despair
Carry days into tomorrows
And tomorrows
Into yesterdays.
Pledge Sunday comes
And all is well.



When the winter warmth
Of the fire
Fades into grayness
And the room is very still,
Shadows, flickering across the wall
Scream at their own silence,
Disappearing,
Then returning, to loom over
And dominate the pale room.
The wind sears the window,
And the cold
Steals into the room
Creeping into the heart,
And the heart is silent.
The innocent is choked,
Consumed into blackness,
As life goes on.

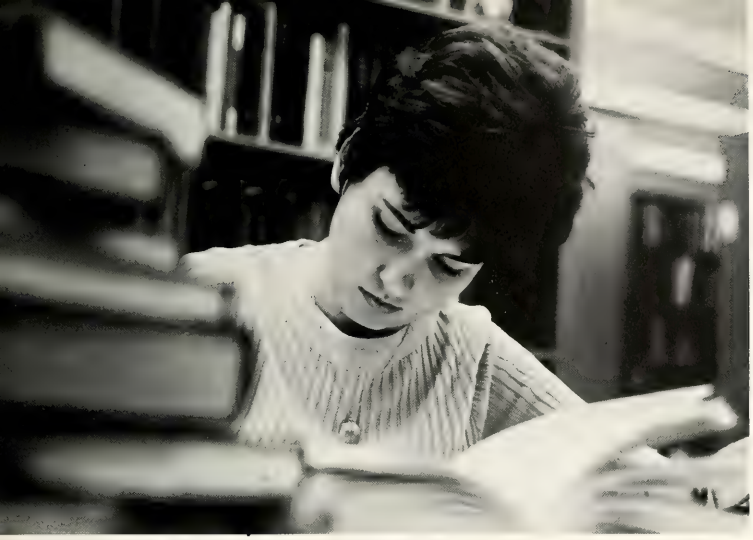
Death is dying,
And the world is pregnant,
Ready to explode
Into green and yellow and pink.
I sense the earth
Trembling with expectation . . .
Will the baby be beautiful?
Will it mature
Into the summer of life?
And how shall it be named?

Spring
Comes like the rising sun.
Its warmth creeps in
Revealing the green world
That was only hidden
By night.
But sometimes clouds
Render the sky a promising pink
Before the sun prevails,
As the cold
Fights
To remain,
Until one day you realize
It's here—
Love comes like
Spring.

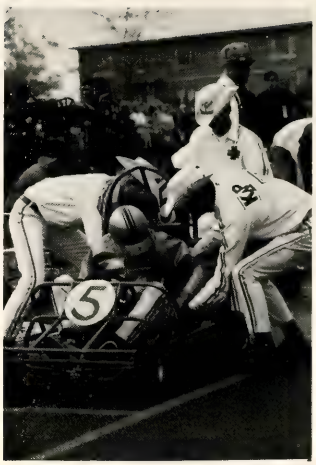


You filled that day in April
With ice cream and laughter
And the sparkle in you
Exploding in your eyes.
I won't say "I love you"
For words are too weak.
I promise nothing for promises are crutches.
You try to change me but I am what I am,
And you are a change in me.
Possess
But don't own me.
Quit the pretension of games
Which build a foliage
Of security, jealousy, and longing,
But hide the branches.
Love me and I am yours;
Believe in me and I will give you the world.

The campus grows before me,
Filled with people,
Eyes blinking
From the sun.
The newfound life
Stirs me
Until even politics
Assumes interest,
As Mock P
Fills the campus
With excitement,
Noise,
And hot air.



SMITH



Rain retires into gloomy clouds
As the soggy race begins
I shiver,
Not entirely from the cold,
As the noisy engines
Burst into life
Beginning a journey
Of endurance
And for some Victory,
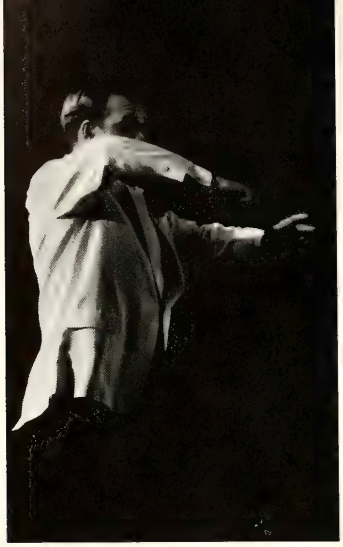
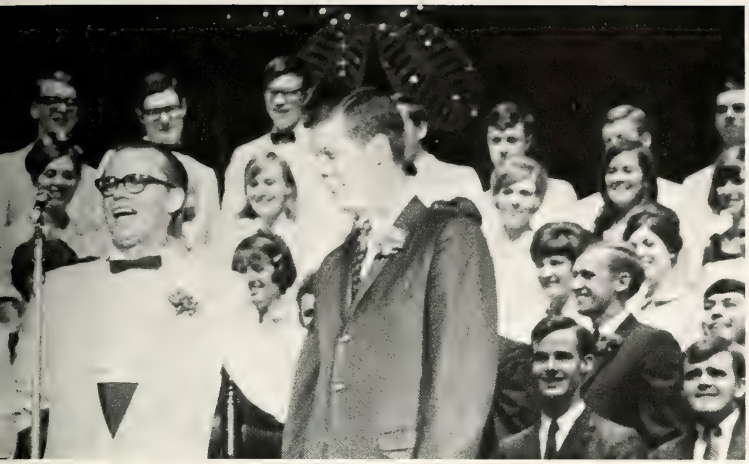
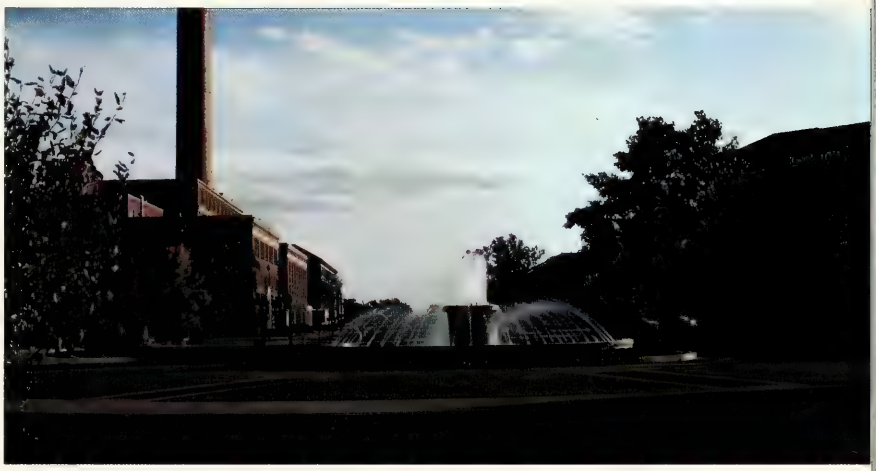
For others—next year.





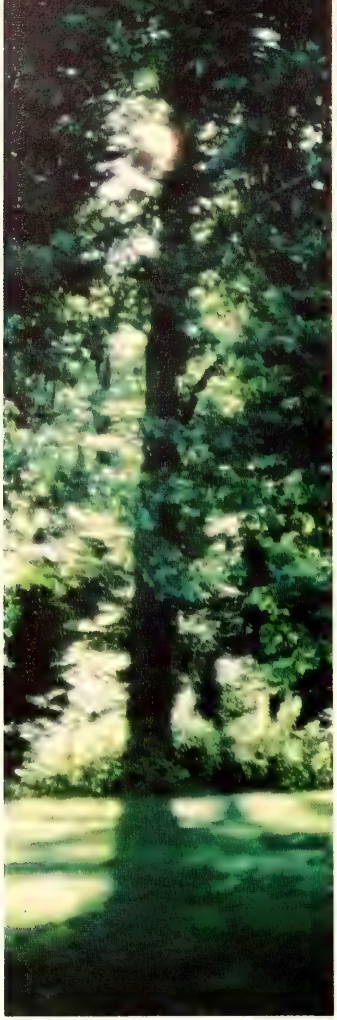
Yesterday,
Mom and Dad came.
They looked slightly
Older than I remembered.
I was reminded of days
When she used to bake peach pie.
Such little reminisces are nice,
Yet things
Aren't quite the same,
They seem
More distant.
But, nevermind,
I merely accept
And find quiet pride
For them,
As I know
They do for me.

I leave behind
Four years of memories—
A way of being.
All expressed by a diploma
Hinting promise for tomorrow
But only guaranteeing
That today has departed.



PURDUE '1

For others college remains
With knowledge,
A by-product
Obscured by a more desperate
Quest:
Grades.
Knowledge broadens me,
But widom
Eludes me,
For I must learn
The lessons of life
Taught
By love and beauty.



Contrasted by winters dormancy,
Spring,
Awakening into summer,
Never fails to startle me.
My eyes open
Like a flower unfolding
To the quiet joy of life:
Budding,
Bursting from the barren landscape.

I marvel
And grow to love life
Which manifests itself
In every newborn child.
I sense life surging within me,
Giving meaning to being,
Granting tranquility
To a torn world.

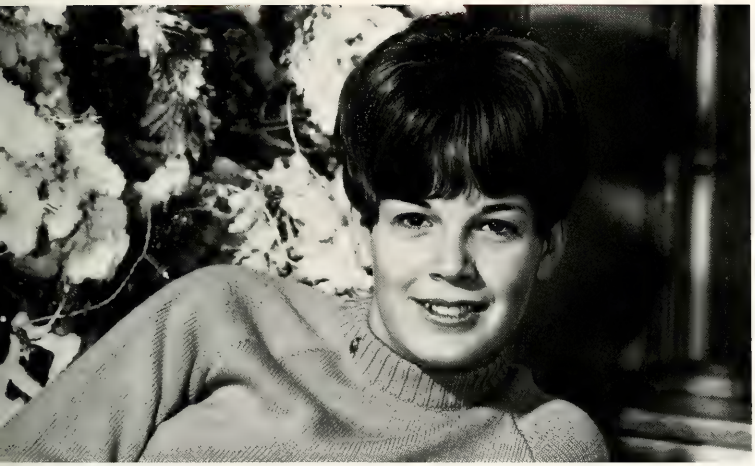
Everywhere, filling me
With their presence,
People aspire, hope, need—
Just as I.
For we are one,
Buoying each other;
There lies the value
And the possibility
Of our being.

Kathi Daume
Debris Queen



But somewhere waiting, without realizing, lives the one who must fulfill
An inner need, transcending friendship and demanding dedication.
So seeking the semblance of someone who will be
And always remain,
I look through a window at a dream
That someday I will live.

Quiet discussion
Over a cup of coffee—
A slightly rumpled suit,
Tie centered but carelessly misplaced,
Hair combed by an irreverent breeze,
The slow shuffle to face a classroom hour
In front of fifty
Who wish they were anyplace else—
Probably, somewhat stereotyped.
He, is a teacher:
Removed, aloof,
And you can't help but wonder
Who he is.

The silent hours,
Long,
Often frustrating,
Are lost somewhere in the night
When man meets book
And learns to hate
Such casual aquaintances.

The awaited time arrives,
And Seniors receive
The anticipated degree,
A preempt to tomorrow.
The surprise,
Sometimes bitter,
Comes when they learn
That they can fail.

Scax walls scrubbed and floors swept for Hovde's Academic Review.

all-American Hovde honored

In 1930 the sports world focused its attention on Fredrick L. Hovde, all-American quarterback from the University of Minnesota. Now, thirty-seven years later, he is again placed in the sports spotlight as recipient of the National Football Foundation's gold medal for outstanding contributions made to collegiate football. The award places the university president in the ranks of United States Presidents Hoover, Eisenhower, and Kennedy. After receiving the gold medal, President Hovde commented, "It's nice to receive an award for doing something you enjoy."

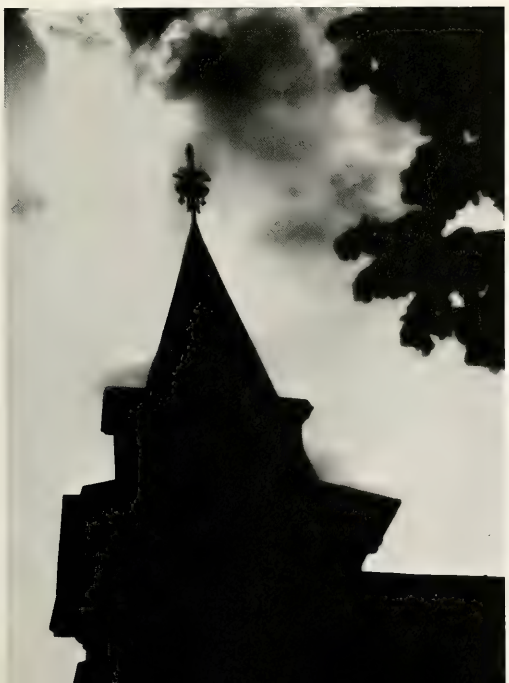
Trustees and other VIP's view Purdue's new arena.

Board of Trustees--the boss' boss

Purdue's nine member Board of Trustees was charged in 1869 "to do all acts necessary and expedient to put and keep said university in operation, make all by-laws, rules and regulations required or proper to conduct and manage same." The Trustees can and do delegate responsibility to President Hovde, which makes them the chief's supervisors. Governor Branigan appointed two new members to the board in September—Walter W. Walb, an alumni trustee, and William A. Hillenbrand, named to succeed Claude R. Wickard. The board as a whole accepts grants, approves financial matters, and most important to bachelor candidates, the board formally approves all degrees conferred.

University Hall Tower stands as a relic of an earlier Purdue.



Miss Mary Elizabeth Skinner, secretary to the Trustees.

Dr. Donald R. Mallett, Vice President and Executive Dean.

Dr. Frederick N. Andrews, Vice President for Research and Dean of Graduate School.

Dr. Lytle J. Freehafer, Vice President and Treasurer.

Without the direction of each of the five vice presidents, the nine schools and the thousand-odd staff members would act as independent entities. Under the direction of the vice presidents, however, the university is a united body. Dr. Hawkins, newly appointed Vice President for Academic Affairs, and Dr. Andrews, Vice President for Research and Dean of the Graduate School, are in direct control over the individual school directors. Dr. Lawshe coordinates the efforts of the regional campuses, while Dr. Freehafer holds the university purse strings. The coordinator's coordinator is Dr. Mallett, Vice President and Executive Dean. Through the confederation of vice presidents, Purdue's schools are federated under one central body.

directors outline academic journey

Toiling through the decisions of admissions, Harland W. White selects the new students each year who begin their journey through Purdue. Purdue Student, number 050505, undoubtedly first encountered the Registrar, Nelson Parkhurst, who guided him toward a degree in his chosen major. To 050505's dismay—or perhaps his parent's—he also became acquainted with D. Francis Finn, Purdue's Business Manager and Assistant Treasurer, who is responsible for tuition and fees, constituting an essential part in the academic journey. Once 050505 was involved in university life, he discovered that his actions were guided by O.D. Roberts, Dean of Men or Helen B. Schleman, Dean of Women: and that as he became a contributing member of Purdue, he received recognition through the services of Herbert Schaller, Director of University News Services. On a broader level, his interests were represented by the Executive Assistant to the President, John W. Hicks, who strives to obtain the necessary state legislation to enable Purdue's students to advance in their academic carrers.

bridge builders close gap

As the enrollment of each freshman class expands, the membership potential of the Purdue Alumni Association increases. The gap of years and of interests between the class of '08 and the class of '68 must be bridged if potential members are to become actual ones. PAA plans to bridge the gaps with a tour of old world Spain and Portugal. The old standard PAA activities, Gala Week and the Alumni Class Parade, provide diversions for "alum watching" undergrads as well as for the returning, reminiscing post-graduates.

Threesome awaits the arrival of an old friend, a bridge fourth.

Classmates of '19 reminisce—"when I was young, we . . . " facilities expand with PRF aid

PRF, an expedient abbreviation for one of the universities most active bodies—Purdue Research Foundation, works for the betterment of student and staff facilities. The Foundation is presently building and financing the Physical Plant which is under construction on the south Ag campus. Tower Acres gained four new lots with the help of finances from the Foundation; and the Purdue Service Center, too, is benefiting from PRF with the addition of Geisler's, Purdue National Bank, Burger Chef, and other student-oriented stores. PRF is not only taking an interest in physical, housing, and shopping facilities but is also continuing to give research grants and fellowships.

Twin smokes of new Physical Plant will replace Purdue's symbolic thirty-three ringed stack.

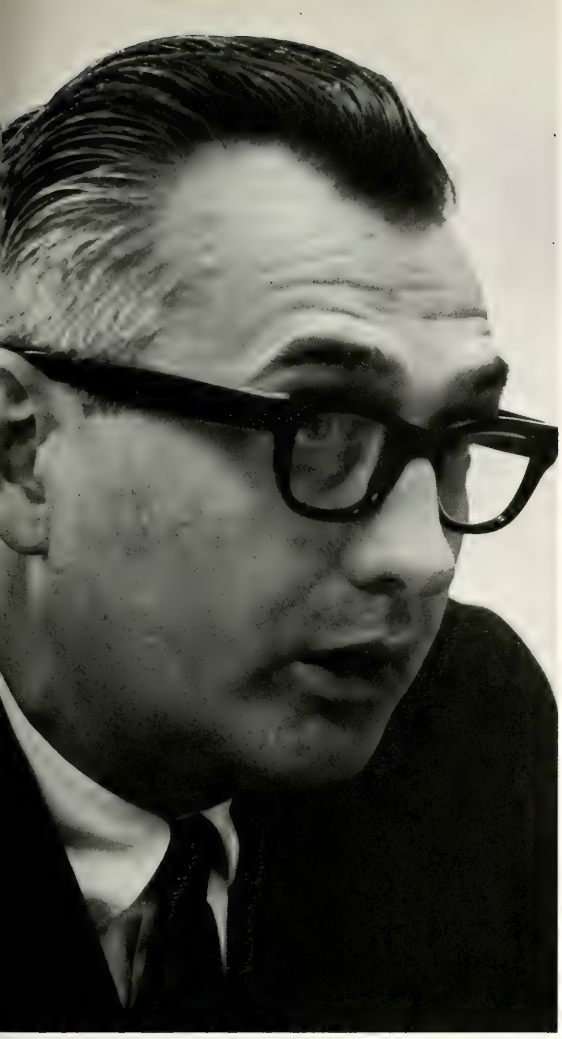
Men master machines for material profit.



Dr. G. W. McNelly explains the proposed Computer Tech Department.

Laws of supply and demand govern the School of Technology. Extensive research and industrial manpower studies conducted by the school have determined where specialists are needed. These studies resulted in the creation of seven new and rapidly growing programs, each of which emphasizes job readiness by helping students graduate and obtain a job without additional training in company programs.

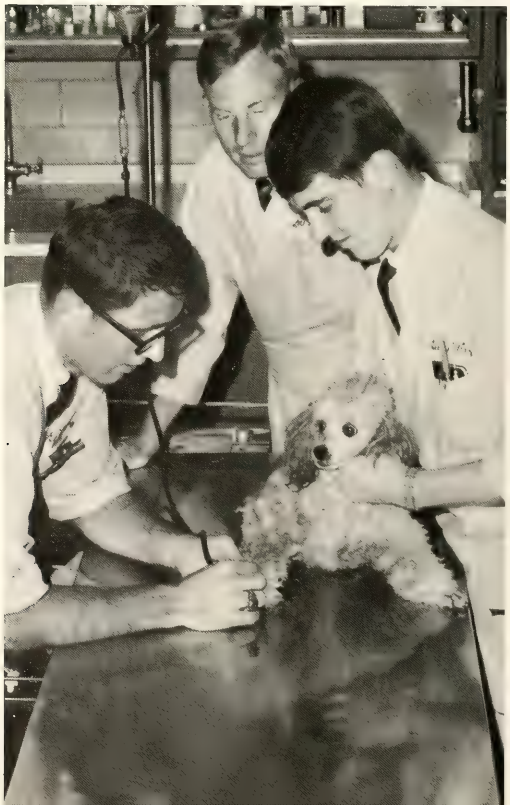
Heavy lab assignments become commonplace to Vet Students.

The best of "bedside manners" doesn't calm a frightened poodle.



Dr. E. V. Morse, one of the few teaching deans, knows each Vet student personally.

Vet School increases enrollment

Work with inanimate slides precedes live animal treatment.

To a pre-vet hopeful, Vet School is a catalogue discription: "The School of Veterinary Science and Medicine trains men and women in the nature and control of animal health and diseases. This training encompasses a period of six years including two-year pre-veterinary curriculum." Every pre-vet student's hopes for acceptance were a little higher this year as additional veterinary students were admitted. Sixty, rather than fifty-five, is the new quota, but competition was just as rugged as ever. The opportunities upon graduation, however, are steadily growing—the Armed Forces, State and Federal government, research, and private practice. Hopefuls awaited the envelope filled with the papers that led him to a DVM.

Pharmacy builds new pill plant

Among Purdue's many campus holes is one belonging to the Pharmacy department. By 1969 the six story building will house Dr. V. E. Tyler and his four hundred three students. "Upon completion this structure will draw together all our scattered research centers. Unfortunately, it couldn't be completed in time to shelter our drug-effects research." The department received eight hundred thousand dollars to carry out research concerning drug-effects on reaction time.

engineering has new dean, new idea

Another successful Purdue Engineer at forty, Richard J. Grosh has taken over the position of Dean of the Schools of Engineering. In order to "squeeze" in new non-technical electives, he hopes in the future to extend the program to five years. "Hopefully," remarked Grosh, "our men will be better qualified to apply their technical knowledge to non-technical fields. Congress, for example, needs engineering know-how, but the number of engineers in Congress is negligible." Grosh himself, served as a Congressional technical consultant to a United States Representative.

An engineering tradition, the Bent.

Dean Grosh discusses the possibility of a five year curriculum.

crowded test tubes in Chem E

Amidst shattering test tubes, atomic building blocks bonded together to accommodate the twenty per cent Chemical Engineering enrollment increase. Physical facilities, however, were not the prime concern of Dr. R. A. Greenkorn, school head. "We are looking ahead to the demands of five or ten years in the future. Presently we must train men to fulfill the approaching needs." Chemical Engineers started by combining elements, bonding particles of knowledge with concrete universe isotopes. The finished articles represent ideas, not products.

ME design hours add creativity

Who says engineering students, like machines, do nothing but absorb and regurgitate facts? On the contrary, mechanical engineers create and design. Anything from medical apparatus to toys might have been made by one of Purdue's past ME majors. The department has done much to foster this creativity by adding ten more design credit hours to the curriculum in the past two years. Under a new program created for the exceptional student, groups of three or four aspiring engineers worked with a company in an effort to solve some outstanding problems facing business. This professional experience immersed the theoretical student into reality and often a life-time career.

growth and change--
EE adds electives

Purdue's Electrical Engineering Department has expanded to such an extent that it is now the largest in the U.S. In carrying out the idea of "progressive uniqueness," the department watchword, more electives have been incorporated into the senior year, research grants have been doubled, and the undergraduate program has been extended to accommodate more students. On graduation day Purdue's EE's received not only a diploma but the challenge to add simplification to the monolithic problems of our intricately computerized world.

Dr. John Hancock explains EE's program of expansion and progression.

four m's dominate life of IE men

Remember Gilbreth in Cheaper by the Dozen? Forget him! The shadow with a stop watch and the stop counter have disappeared from the Industrial Engineering arena. Dr. Harold Amrine, school head, stressed the image of a professional man steeped in the four M's—machines, materials, management, and men. The flow of products or services from raw material through men and machines to the final consumer market is the design of an Industrial Engineer. It can't be done with a stop watch.

Aero and E Sci: realism and GRE's

Were the Purdue Aeronautical senior students building a "yellow submarine?" No, but one half of the class did strive to construct a flying sub, while other students spent time on VSTOL—Vertical and Short Take Off and Landing. "Realistic design in all projects was emphasized this year," said Dr. Hsu Lo, Deputy to the Acting Head. On the other hand, Engineering Science is not aimed at one specific engineering project. Their immediate goals revolve around the Graduate Record Exam and graduate school. Last semester ninety-five per cent went on to earn Masters degrees.

Dr. Lo spins "yellow sub" tale.

Civil Engineers explore surface

Civil Engineers and one lone Mechanical Engineer reached towards the moon on Purdue's own campus this winter. Their project, a lunar surface sampler to be used in future space exploration, exemplifies just one of the new branches opening in Civil Engineering and expands the old concerns of planning, design, and construction.

Dr. Gerald Leonards discusses problems in the lunar surface project.

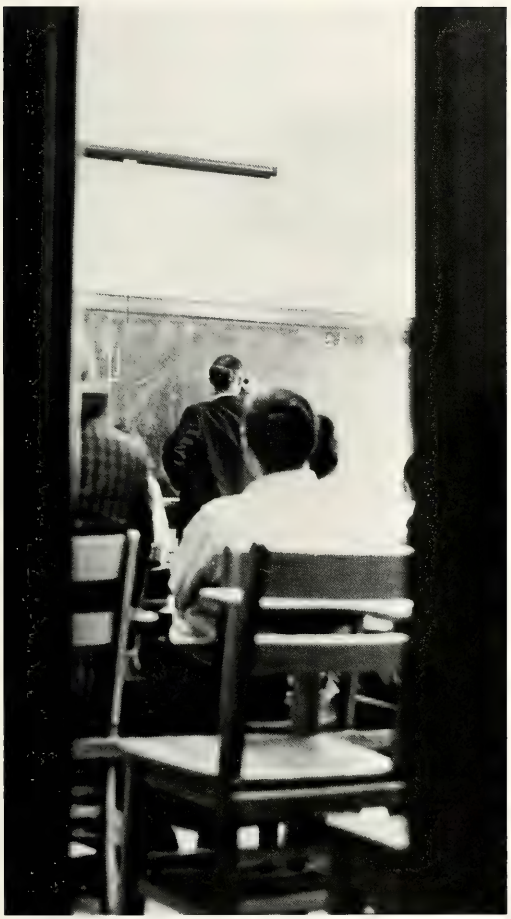
grad students only in Nuclear Engineering

In our world of outerspace and ultrasophistication, the man of the hour is the nuclear engineer. Who is he, what is he? He is any "ordinary" slide stick slipper who has done more in four undergrad years than earn a bachelor's degree. The knowledge of E Sci, EE, and Physics poured into his brain has coagulated and crystallized. He is a graduate student endeavoring to harness nuclear power for peaceful purposes. He is a humanitarian, researching desalting processes and smog free air through the use of uranium fuel. He is the engineer of today and tomorrow, not of yesterday.

Complex N.E. raises questions; Dr. P. Powers listens to them all.

Nuclear engineers investigate half-life of uranium.

Striving for perfection includes removing kinks in tubing.



Met E draws its core courses from all the engineering schools.

Dr. Grace points out the high recruiting-retension correlation.

Met E-Uncle Sam share common goal

Uncle Sam isn't the only one who wants you. The Metallurgical Engineering and Material Sciences department on campus has bent over backwards this year to recruit new students interested in dealing with problems ranging from micro-electronic planning to aerospace fabrication with stops at nuclear power facility construction and research in ceramics. Dr. Grace, department head, commented that, "There is a vast amount of ignorance surrounding Metallurgical Engineering. A freshman has never entered our engineering department with the intention of specializing in Met E, but each year we graduate twenty-five or thirty."

Home Ec expands

Pots and pans, acid indigestion, and the psychology of clothing have become the concerns of home economists. Purdue's School of Home Ec has added a new undergraduate program in social welfare, maintaining a modern curriculum. Following Dean Eva Goble's idea that "The university is a social institution reordered to fit the times," the school added social welfare study to aid in the knowledge of poverty and welfare problems of today.

Dean Goble sights the need for men in Institutional Management.

students win HSSE game; core gets cut

"Mother May I" has become a popular game among the Humanities, Social Science, and Education faculty members. The school approached the abstract collegiate goals of freedom and challenge in a concrete way. By reducing the present General Education Requirements from sixty-two to forty-five hours, and providing a greater challenge for students from the time they enter Purdue to the time they graduate, the faculty hopes to broaden the students' scope. But, the "Mother May I"—do we have the funds, is it feasible—game has delayed the program. September, 1968, however, will see the new Core in effect. The expected result is greater student satisfaction, freedon, and challenge.

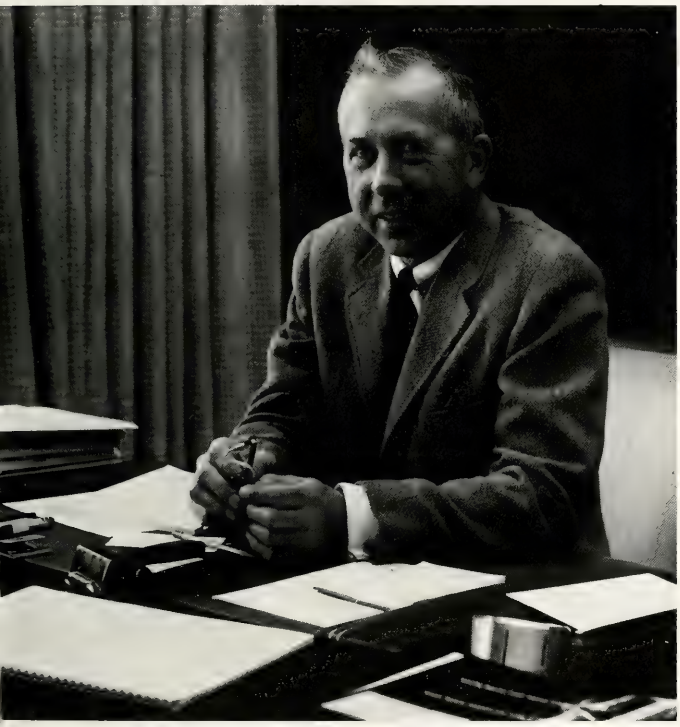
Test time—those left know either too much or too little.



Dean E. T. Weiler happily talks about the advantages of the new IM council.

This pre-class chatter isn't IM centered.

IM council spurs creativity

Creativity is becoming a major criterion for selection of management personnel. Purdue's school of Industrial Management, not unmindful of the creative emphasis, has developed the IM Council. Members of the council are given an opportunity to exercise their imaginations by solving problems and generally improving the IM curriculum. The school is presently conducting research on the uses of creative people in large structured businesses. Dean Weiler commented that our structured educational system discourages creativity, yet industry is now demanding that very quality; "Our responsibility is to redevelop it within our students."

". . . under those conditions your answer is correct, but . . ."

Through the IM looking glass.

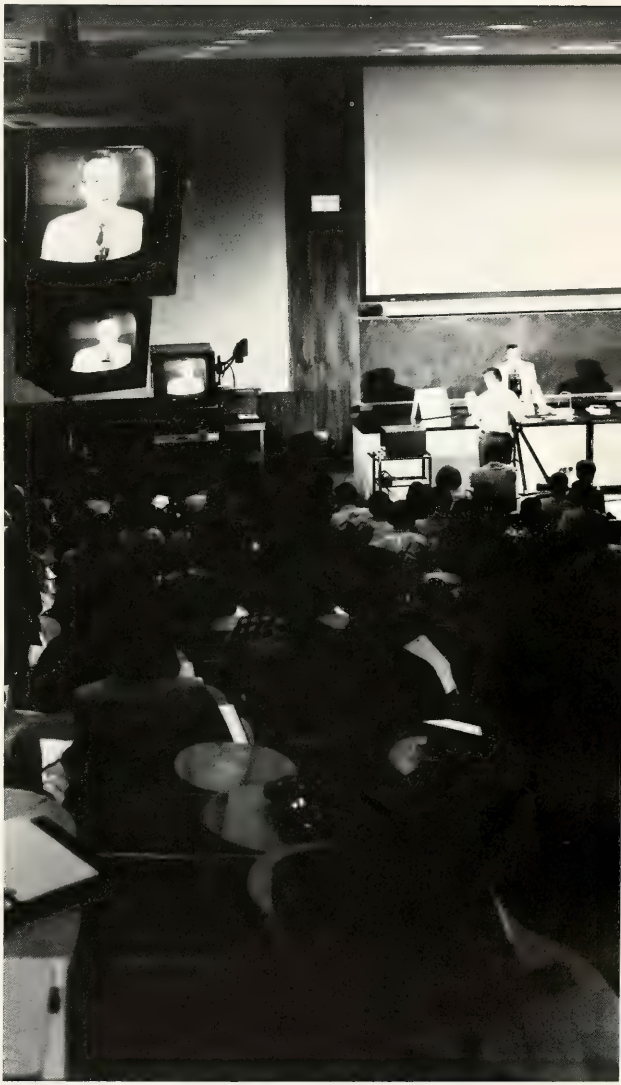
Dean Felix Haas discusses the improvements in Purdue's already fine Science School.

Science rises ten stories

With the increase in space provided by the new Mathematical Science building and the addition of more advanced scientific equipment, the School of Science enlarged its study of radiation damage to living cells, celestial mechanics for future space travel, and the many different aspects of sea life—its minerals and its possibilities for future food sources. The most important improvement, according to Dean Haas, was the addition of the new cycletron presently under construction; "It will be a definite advantage in future research and will open new areas of diversified study."

Women in the man's field of science still turn to males for aid.



Biology 201, the liberal arts students' nightmare.

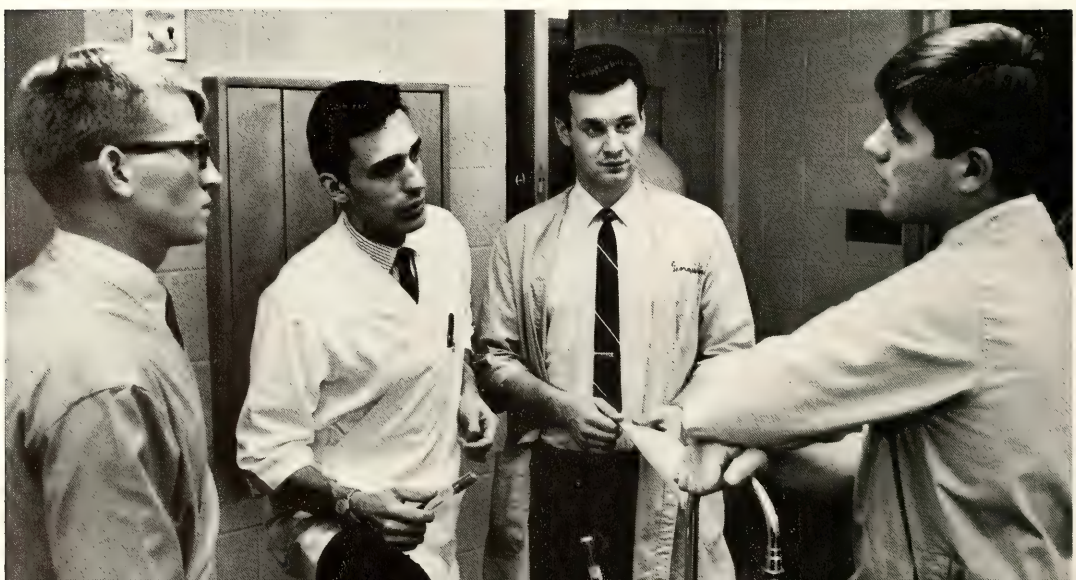
"Do you really think we could synthesize life in a test tube?"



Aspiring politician and Agriculture Dean, Earl Butz.

stability amid change in agriculture

Agronomy experiments determine proper soil types for plant growth.

"Never change horses in mid-stream" may be a good adage for equestrians, but it doesn't apply to Purdue's Agriculture school. In January Dean Earl Butz resigned from the academic arena to follow his hat into the political ring. Interim Dean Norman Volk abandoned an early retirement to effect a smooth transition midstream for the nation's third largest School of Agriculture. Along with the new dean will come a new option. The Animal Science endorsement has been extended to include Animal Science Industries, which will provide a broader business base for Agriculture students.

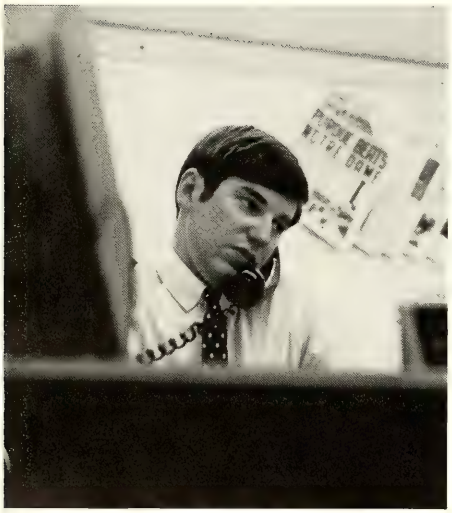
tunnel traveling Grad-Hiltonites

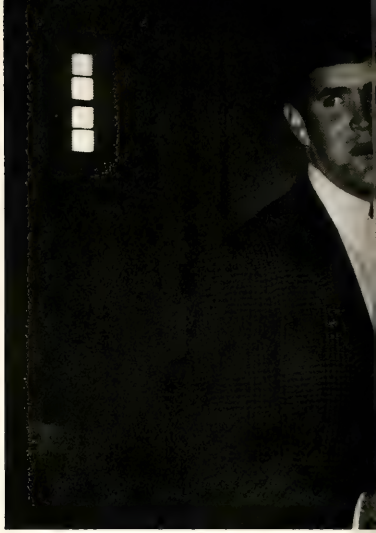
Over half of Purdue's tunnel traveling grad students will take their last jaunt between Krannert and the Cypress Room because of deferment recalls. Consequently, there will be fewer hands grabbing for grants out of the twenty million dollars that Uncle Sam willed to Purdue for research projects. So far the quickest hand has been that of the Graduate Science Department. Their speed paid off to the tune of five million dollars. In order to obtain one of the individual grants, grad students must have top grades. "All-nighters" become a habit, and tension rises to near suicidal heights. Some of the pressures of grad school, those of theses writing, have been eliminated. Each department sets its own policy on theses requirements. PhD candidates can avoid writing a Master's thesis in some cases, although Dr. Andrews, Dean of the Graduate School, does not advise such a program. Grad students have found through experience that life in the "Grad-Hilton" can make the tensions of twelve credits a little more bearable.

Formal receptions in the Krannert Drawing Room draw grads and undergrads alike.

Mr. Krannert, the man behind the portrait.

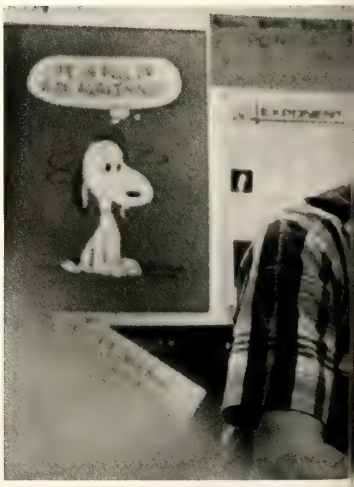


activities



Four hours of engineering
Or five hours of home ec
Dull the mind
With knowledge,
And even the sane seek escape.

To excel
From classroom oblivion
Forms the goal of those
Who clog the offices of the Union
Searching for meaning,
Wondering if
They found it.



To stand out
Within yourself
Hoping that someone else may notice
Somewhere in the middle
Of the band,
Is the man playing the horn—
Only he could be proud
Of his mistakes,
For without him
The other five hundred,
And maybe life,
Would lack a little something.

1968 Honorary Iron Keys:
Lytle J. Freehafer and Guy J. Mackey

Nine men, nine Purdue students, nine leaders of campus activities—the 1968 Class of Iron Key worked together to coordinate student activities and the administration. Continuing their tradition of secrecy, the "Magnificent Nine" also tackled many of the multiversities problems caused by the rapid growth in the student population. Throughout the year the Keys strove in a common effort to make the students voice heard and acknowledged by both the faculty and administration.

Does this say "Men?"

Pete Tennyson, president, surveys the subject.

not a stepping stone

Coats and ties were the ODK attire, but informality was the atmosphere. Employing a realistic attitude, the Century Circle evaded formal programs, yet managed to unify the leaders in each phase of campus life. Concerned with the individual role of the student, the men of the laurel crown and the women of the mortar board cooperated to sponsor the Leadership Conference. Unlike other honoraries, ODK was the goal reached, rather than a stepping stone.

Now where do we go?

Mortar Board breaks tradition

"Red? Are you kidding me?" was a common cry as students returned this fall and bought their Mortar Board Calendar. Breaking with a past tradition of dull, drab colors, the MBs chose bright red to cover their 1967-68 production. Continuing on the bright side, they celebrated their 40th Anniversary with a Homecoming breakfast spiced by an Iron Key serenade. Apparently the Mortar Boards enjoyed singing for they turned out full force for a Christmas Carolling party with the Keys. The year ended with the traditional candlelight tapping of the new class in May.

under the Debris big top

Cracking his whip, ring-master Scripps set the circus world of the 1968 Debris awhirl. Under the Big Top, the staff precariously walked the deadline tightrope while performing editors threw knives. Clowns photographed neon colors; the striped zebras recorded in black and white. As the show unfolded throughout the year, the audience wondered what would happen in the last act.

In the beginning the leaves were green and so were we.

Will the Big Top chrush Oakie?

Our militant man on campus, Editor-in-Chief Locke Scripps.

Pitching pennies at Kewpie dolls, the bookkeepers managed the folly. In front of the tent, the barkers sold Debris like popcorn and cotton candy. Behind the scenes the trained bears licked envolopes and kept the show on the road. While the funny little clowns still played, the business calliope steamed throughout the menagerie.

From her perch in the fun house, Trainer Downham shouted commands. Roustabouts scrambled from opening section to the last activity, stopping only to ride the photography merry-go-round. sounds of a paper.... sounds of students?

Under Editor WOF, Exponent stressed service but neglected representation. Even with the motto, "Sounds of a paper . . . sounds of students," the publication was able to keep the verbal decibel level to a low roar. Crusading on a one day basis, Exponent managed to stir student inertia on the Viet Nam policy, Gimlet serenades, the accused Panhel prejudices, and liquor permit denials. Then to remain editorially independent of university administration, Expo burned their "Pudrue Impotent."

"Purdue's Child" kept the "Quiet Crisis" very quiet, inferring the attitude that the only good college newspaper which had the courage to speak out was a dead newspaper. New innovations such as a Halloween Hovde mask, and a Tuesday Campus Beat sparked new life into a stagnant publication. Gad, flys can be irritating.

Student Union--just for fun

To achieve its goal of providing entertainment for every group on campus, Student Union sponsored both all-campus functions and specialized programs. The popular Screamers, which featured name bands such as The Flippers and The Banned, coupled with the annual Union Spectacular, provided activities for all students. Cultural functions and University Sing along with hobby clubs for railroad, aviation, and photography enthusiasts created diverse opportunities to satisfy those with varied interests. The "Around the World Christmas Party" maintained the foreign students' interest in Student Union.

Striving to incorporate more cultural functions along with the former Union format, this year's board created "Issues and Coffee" to supplement the already successful "Books and Coffee" and "World Around Us." Featuring Professor Gass and other guest speakers from the humanities school, programs such as "The Artist and Society" and "The Learned and the Elite" were presented. Union also devised an Activities Calendar which added to and updated the Mortar Board.

Completing its second year as a pink and black mirror for Greek subculture, The Greek reflected a campus way of life. ENGINEER STAFF—Rich Powers, Chris Zieman, Kent Williams.

Technically oriented, the Purdue Engineer featured innovations in engineering design, interviews with professors plus other campus leaders, and "Scope" articles which reflect the views of engineering students. A new column, "Apogee," presented the most recent information in space exploration. Published eight times during the year, the Engineer was ranked fourth among the best college engineering magazines at this year's national convention of Engineering College Magazine Associated. The staff also accepted awards for the best continuing feature, "Scope," and the best individual cover design.

Agriculturist turns cows to computers

When the cows still roamed the campus, a new and exciting phase of journalism was born. With the dawn of the Agriculturist, Purdue students produced a magazine for themselves and their farming posterity. But with the onslaught of females, this public interest publication soon expanded its scope to include the homemaker. Regular features as "The Breeders' Index" and "Jokes and Happiness" provided a release from the "Farmers' Almanac." Today, when aerial photos and computers measure croplands, the Agriculturist still thrives.

Following the Faculty Senate's approval of James Bond tactics, Course and Instructor Evaluation attacked the secret world of the classroom. With the first stage of the mission accomplished, the organization promised to canvas all undergraduate courses. A result of three years of campaign strategies, C&IE revealed their findings as public information.

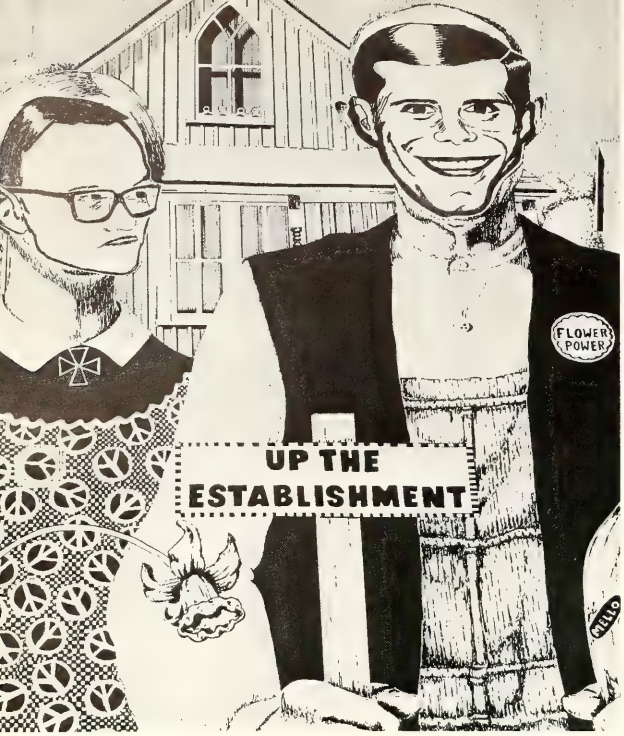
remember the Stock Rebellion



Purdue Gothic.

All revolutions go through periods of concern, discord, victory—then apathy. The Stock Rebellion was the calm after the storm. Discussions over a beer gave way to neatly typed correspondance, formality no longer the exception. Organization had its importance, everything was in its place—Stu in his office, Bruce in his classroom. Politics retarded the "committment to action". The "solid" was there—but the "committment" was lost.

STUDENT ADVOCATE--Pete Tennyson

No longer compared to the Salem witch trials, the judiciary branch of Student Government recognized the student as a citizen. For the first time a case was thrown out on the grounds of double jeopardy. Making further strides away from the standards board approach, Court thoroughly investigated and prepared student cases. Without mockery, student appeals received personal attention by the Student Advocate.

Student Government subdived the Executive branch into seven cabinet programs. S.G. Publicity linked students to their government, to the administration, and also to other universities. Fulfilling two campaign promises, it initiated University Forum and the Speakers Bureau. Over protests of Lafayette businessmen, S.G. Municipal published a comparative price index to aid students in their buying but deemed it political to ignore the proposed parking ordinance. S.G. Academic sought ways to further the university's academic excellence by completing the pass-not pass program. The idea for a book-exchange, originated by S.G.A., later materialized as a project of S.G. Service and Exponent. Lagging convocation attendance prompted Cultural to sponsor a Pop Concert series, which brought the Supremes to campus. These divisions worked together to fulfill goals of the Stock Administration.

Financially indispensable to Purdue Student Government, S.G. Service "Big Business" provided money over and above the university's appropriation. As a student service in an experimental stage, S.G.S. co-operated with Exponent in the Book Exchange, the first step toward a university operated book store. Other improvements in the reorganized S.G.S. office offered an expanded workshop for a new offset press, and a shift in junior board jobs for diversified experience.

Senate--in defense of student rights

Imitating the Federal Government, the Purdue Student Senate argued major proposals as well as trivial bills. In spite of their extended debates over significant issues such as fluoridation, and their own terms of office, the government continued to function. However, to promote the Purdue student to first-class citizen, the Senate did capitalize on the "Solid Committment's" major promise to initiate a Student Bill of Rights. Continuing to aid the Purdue student, the Senate introduced legislation which would set up an all university appeals board to compliment the present court system. Concerned with the problems of graduates, the Senate investigated the role of these students at Purdue. Although several primary bills were passed, the 1967-68 Senate left much work for the new administration.

If one can judge by the activities of the officers and council, sophomore slump never struck this year. From the first enthusiastic leap into freshman orientation to the final attempt at solving the problem of closer cooperation between class governments and student body officers, the year was filled with fun and a unity of purpose. Whether involved with the ordinary tasks of Exponent and class ring sales or an exciting Mock P, the spirit of '70 echoed enthusiastically throughout the campus. Move onward . . . it's a junior world!

Grand Prix--kaleidoscope weekend

A dash of Mystery Number Five, a dab of Pure Hell, and rapid stirring by a Flying Serpent chasing a Dragon Wagon were all ingredients filling a caldron of activities called Grand Prix. A newly crowned queen signaled the kaleidoscope start of Purdue's biggest spring weekend color. The green flag welcomed all entries readied for the race, but 125 laps meant victory for one, a Cotter Key for another. Finally, the checkered flag and a closing performance at Victory Varieties ended Grand Prix's tenth anniversary.

a change in the key of "G"

With a few raisings by the paddle and a downing of many kegs, our Greek campus leaders tapped-in their new siblings. Highly spirited, the Gimlets flocked together at football games for warmth—not to cheer. In the usual tradition, they began serenading sororities, but the first 11 o'clock song fest rated an editorial encore on Gimlet. Answering the reprimand, these elite added "Deck the Halls" to their musical program. The gold and black-potted men, however, protected their reputation by rallying at one of their famous Friday night conservation club meetings.

". . . symbolic representation of the engineer who builds, the agriculturist who feeds, and the scientist who plans."

Never without his black pot, the Reamer, an active, independent Senior man commonly called the "Loudspeaker of Purdue" represents service, tradition, and spirit. He is seen with the Lions four days a week shouting: "Old Purdue is out of sight!" Only a Reamer knows that the Lion's eyes are 4.7" apart; the Music Hall has 22 exits and can be evacuated in 8 minutes; that the Old Oaken Bucket has 48 screws, 8 rivets, and 12 staves. From the Lions he boards Purdue's mechanical man, the Boilermaker Special, advertising for the Pep Committee.

Green Guard fashion for a freshman.

guardian for the green

With even more female freshmen to guide, AWS was again on guard with their question-marked beanie honorary to shrink the Purduvian "bigness". Answering traditional questions proved the green guardian's main task. As an introductory offer, Green Guards presented the Mortar Boards, "big brass," and Miss Purdue to their fresh ones at a chicken picnic. Later in a winter fashion show, "The Girls the Boys Watch" paraded on the notable arms of the male campus leaders. Thus went the Green Guards who gave hope to bewildered freshmen.

peppers painted gold

Somewhere . . . lies a pot of gold. Traveling through a rainbow of activities, Purdue coeds searched for this treasure. But only those tapped by the Gold Peppers spectrum found it. With their pots of glitter, the Gimlet counterparts cheered together for LeRoy and the boys. Again in the spirit of athletics, this honorary participated at the basketball arena open house. Having discovered pots of gold, the Peppers began their search for blazers of white.

No, there are not real cavemen and Indians roaming campus, only well-beaten Greek bones and big independent hatchets. Behind these bones and hatchets are the "up and coming" activity jocks, the Skull and Crescents and Tomahawks whose sights are set on their superiors, Gimlets and Reamers. AWS expands coeds' activities

Concerned with Purdue coeds as a minority group, the Associated Women's Students also joined in the fight for first-class citizenship. A depth study of discrimination against women in campus activities along with plans for a series of sex education programs initiated the determined effort to answer women's needs. Testing the reversal of a woman's role, AWS upheld ATOM week and the Golddigger's Ball. The movement most quickly realized, however, was the expansion of the Miss Purdue Pageant. With the addition of the bathing suit competition, the contest simulated the national search for Miss America giving Miss Purdue a better opportunity when representing the university.

APO--loyal, honest, trustworthy

Is an ugly man worth a penny? Alpha Phi Omega says yes, since the money raised in their annual Ugly Man on Campus contest helped support Campus Chest. As another service project, the "loyal, honest, and trustworthy" APO's guarded the campus secret ballot boxes. Further upholding Boy Scout ideals, several members served the Lafayette area as Scout Masters. To warn careless student-drivers, the APO's placed a wrecked car beside the lions. The resulting impetus, however, was not caution but theft of the car parts. As a result of these varied services, the Purdue APO's ranked in the top ten national chapters in project-man hours.

striking enthusiasm

From "A Day at the Circus" to excerpts from Tchaikovsky's 1812 Overture, Purdue's All-American Marching Band awed football fans with colorful half-time performances. Featuring the world's largest bass drum, the Golden Girl, Silver Twins, and Majorette Corps, the Marching Band brightened football days with a combination of striking enthusiasm and precision.

AFROTC develops leaders

Like its big brother organization, the Air Force ROTC program at Purdue has become the largest volunteer unit of its kind. AFROTC selects, motivates, and develops college men for service as Air Force officers. Cadets are taught the fundamentals of drill and the basic concepts of aerospace power. The advanced cadet spends his last two years expanding his knowledge and experience through his own field of interests.

Angels promote AFROTC interest

Purdue Angels are active in promoting college men's interests in the AFROTC program. This year, flight members combined the actions of sunny sands and golden tans with the AAS boys in a joint conclave in Miami. The coeds also hostessed military convocations, the President's review, and the Military Ball.

AAS promotes American citizenship

Promoting American citizenship in an air age is the main ideal of Purdue's Iven C. Kincheloe Squadron of the Arnold Air Society. This year the AAS presented the university with a memorial for Purdue's astronaut alumnae. Twice each year, AAS chooses outstanding AFROTC cadets as pledges who are then initiated at the Air Force Ball, the major social function of the year.

Navy ROTC stresses tradition

Fortifying its ranks with the largest freshman class on record, the Purdue Navy ROTC maintained its status as the finest in the nation. Innovations such as the Navy Drum and Bugle Corps and the Navy Drill team played active parts in the progress attained by the Midshipmen. Developing leaders of men, training college students in Naval science, and molding these cadets with the traditions of the past were the objectives of NROTC, 1968.

Traditionally the largest source of new officers for the Active Army and the Reserve Components, Army ROTC participates in a rigorous program of indoctrinating, training and teaching fine young men about to be sent to the national front. AROTC prepares each cadet to assume the responsible initiative of an officer in the U. S. Army. These men follow intensive instruction in the fighting skill of successful armies of the past: close order drill, M-1 rifle, and tactical maneuvers.

Honor, leadership, and intelligence sum up the qualities of a Pershing Rifleman. As an active member of Company E-3, each man can participate in the rifle team, tactical unit, drill team, and the drill meet staff. Blades march in Milwaukee

After brushing up on military tactics at the Thirty-Third National Convention in Milwaukee, Company E-1 of Scabbard and Blade returned to campus to resume activities. This tri-service—Army, Navy, Air Force—military honorary personalizes the soldier in the Armed Forces. The 20 members gained their active status through meeting the requirements of a 4.5 minimum accum, recommendations of academy officers, and approval of the company.

Lynn Merhof talks with Old Master John Strom.

How do twelve well-qualified men and women "say yes to life?" This year's Old Masters, who engaged in professions ranging from the rabbinate to architecture, answered this question for Purdue students. A central committee of nine students and two faculty advisors were responsible for choosing the speakers and planning the program. Hosts and hostesses were selected, and a Student Union Coffee Hour was started in an attempt to make Old Masters '67 more informal and beneficial to the entire student body.

Penguin Pete, the mascot of the 67-68 Purduvian Party, slid into the excitement this fall of preparing for the Mock Political Convention Stimulating the Purdue students' interest in knowledge of the American political parties nomination system, Mock P promoted university-wide participation in state delegations, rallies, favorite son's clubs, and pressure groups. Following the finale of the '68 Mock P, Purdue awaits November to again see the old adage of "so goes Purdue, so goes the nation," proven correct.

Symbolism

. . . and uncertainty

To the college student, the meaning of life becomes a most significant goal as he begins his new generation apart from the home that gave him his religious beliefs. The new environment of college precipitates his doubts and fears. To he who is stimulated by an education, religion becomes a search for meaning and security for life, but for others the search never ends.

To most people religion is public worship on Sunday. For others, however, religious activities continue throughout the week and become an outward dedication of the feelings that reside within.

To he who believes that Purdue is "a hotbed of rest," let him gaze upon these pages, for herein lies testimony to the myriads of hobbies in which thousands of Purduites engage. To garner the hard-earned activity points, these people put many hours in such mindbending clubs as aeromodelers and square dancing.

Steal your mind,
A little like the night
Steals the sun.
Sometimes you wonder
Why it takes a crowd
To be lonely,
Can you become a part

And the morning sometimes
Finds disaster.
Bonds grow in those moments,
Erasing doubts.
It only takes that one certain

IFC--
a changing style

Gads! This is going to hurt all the way down tc my white socks.

Whacking away at the old image of paddle parties and hazing, Interfraternity Council is shedding its beaver coat of frivolity for an honest attempt to improve its image. This isn't a short term project, but rather one that involves many Saturday afternoons painting at the Lafayette community center for neighborhood children, Greek Week evenings collecting canned goods for charity, and, most importantly, daily living that merits an upward shift in opinion. IFC is gradually restructuring its Playboy society in the minds of many.

Now stop looking into that lady's window and start painting.

Kowabonga! Amid hanging vines and savage jungle beasts, the great white hunters of AEPi and their little sisters staged their annual Jungle Party early this year. Big game hunting continued long enough for the guys to hunt up Jane and bring her to the Christmas formal and the pledge dances. Delta Gamma

It seems the DGs preferred masquerading. First dressed as "The Racing Nuns" the DGs and Betas won a trophy for the most spirit in the Les Filles Prix. Then they were—well spirited again, masquerading as everything from Plymouth Rock to mashed potatoes and a turkey on their annual turkey serenade. But that's not all the DGs have accomplished. Three "girls" tried their best to "Can-can the Beavers"—The sisters promised they weren't Delta Gammas—and won first place in the Homecoming Sign Contest among all sororities.

Bursting with "Me and My Girl from Theta Town," the KAΘs sang forth at serenades this year. A psychedelic open house with the ΔTΔs set the pace followed by a yellow slip-bourbon taffy trade party with the SAEs. Adding novelty to fall, the sophomores wore fire engine hats at the football games and flew pin kites on the hill. With enthusiasm they ended the year by royally entertaining their Moms with skits and a party on Mother's Day Weekend.

Applying the motto, "Fraternity for the Future," the AKL's moved into their new fraternity house at 417 Waldron. This was the scene for "The Herd" entertaining at the "Holly Holiday." To the tune of Odus Redding, Freddie the Hamster and two piles of saddle shoes made this their permanent home. Here popcorn and punch were served to trick-or-treaters in October, while great enthusiasm flourished for New Mexico in Mock P.

Triangle

The men of Triangle have an angle for everthing, and their base this year is the big news on campus—Mock P. Since early summer of 1967, the brothers combined forces with XΩ to win California and brought these efforts to a peak by interviewing Ronald Reagen's Press Secretary. The area of their activities, though, ranged from an all-campus Homecoming Openhouse to Greek Week with the collecting of canned goods for charity.

Alpha Tau Omega

Glory came to the ATOs for first place in the Chariot Race during Greek Week. The fun continued with an Electric Blanket party, an Alley Dance with the Kappas, and a Zebra party with the Omega Psi Phi's. But all fun and no work is not for the Taus. Their charity project with the Little Sisters included work at the Wabash Children's Center. Bad weather caused the only disappointment this year, because the ATO-Pike Little Sister football game had to be postponed until spring.

Alpha Delta Pi

Running away with four awards—President's, Treasurer's, Chapter Finance, and Scholarship Improvement—at the National Convention, the ADPis joined with the TKEs, and went on to take the state of Texas in Mock P. Even their housemother with her new senior cords was caught up in the fast-moving pace. Finding time to help out at the cerebral palsy clinic, the ADPis later bought Christmas toys for foster children.

Phi Gamma Delta

What did the Fijis do this year? Well, it was rather difficult to find out. Every time someone asked a brother what the Phi Gams had done, the only thing he talked about was Fiji Island. It isn't every day that a fraternity house is turned into a native isle, but why couldn't the Fijis have reminded us about their Notre Dame open house, or that they sat with the Chi Os at the football games? Didn't they also sponsor the annual Turkey Twist, have UMOC parties with Aϕ, and Mock P parties with Π Bϕ? It's a good thing that there were other people on campus who went to these activities so they could tell us about the fun they had.

Racing down the mighty Wabash in their Batboats, the Theta Taus captured the first place trophy in the annual four man kayak races. First place honors again went to the boys when this chapter was chosen the number one professional engineering fraternity in the United States. When the guys weren't enjoying themselves at the Christmas and pledge parties or working busily on Mock P with Maclure Co-op, they could probably be found in the library maintaining one of the highest scholastic averages on campus.

Sigma Kappa

Celebration started early at the Sigma Kappa house when the girls welcomed a new housemother and received a silver tray from national for their pledge class grades. Adding further to the jubilation, the Sigma Kappas staged a Halloween party with the Theta Taus and a rough and tumble roller skating party with the TKEs. Santa and his elves rewarded all the hardworking girls with gifts at the annual Sigma Kappa Christmas dance.

Constructivism is the cry of the Farmhouse men. This is the year of "The Plans," whether its building their grade index to surpass last semester's scholastic high, or just watching the plot on State Street shaped into a new house. "The Plans" even include an innovation with a foundation of happiness called "parties;" like the all-house birthday party at Soldiers Home and a Christmas party for underprivileged children. "The Plans" are just the beginning for the men of Farmhouse.

Beta Theta Pi

The day after the battle of the bands found the Beta house still standing. Small wonder though, after being invaded by three bands along with one of the largest crowds to see any fraternity open house this year. Fortunately, dazzled by Bazel's light show, the crowd stayed out of the fight. Even so, the Betas aren't taking chances. Next year's battle will take place in and around an even stronger fort; the Betas are planning extensive remodeling over the summer. The remodeling isn't just for better fortifications though, a larger intramural case is definitely in order.

"Hurry! Hurry! Ride the greatest merry-go-round of the year!" The ΦΨ carny is calling kiddies to another "Fling" on their "Island" of merriment. And here come the fun-seekers! Sigma Pi

Thundering down Second Street in their Leach containers come the Sigma Pis, led by the ferocious Skilo Von Sig. Oh, no! They're tripping over hundreds of teeny-bopping hippies who are entirely flooding the race track. Wait! Closing in on the turn are none but their own little sisters, wildly waving silverware and light bulbs in the air and dragging a huge bag of burned toast. But where are the Sig Pi's going? Why, they're charging up the stairs of the burning Phi Mu house! This constitutes an automatic dismissal from the race, and the whole crowd from the lemonade stand is beginning to shift down the street away from the race in disappointment.

Like maidens in the days of Troy, the Pi Phis have been besieged with activities by gallant Greeks throughout the fall season. A feast with the Sigma Nus, coliseum seats with the Betas, and open houses with the Crows and Acacias were all important dates on the Pi Phi calendar. Honors such as Alpha Gamma Rho Sweetheart, Lambda Chi Alpha Sweetheart, Sigma Chi Sweetheart, and Pi Kappa Alpha Sweetheart were bestowed upon the maidens of 1012 State Street. Little relief appeared in sight as the Pi Phis finished the year with the traditional Kappa Kappa Gamma-Pi Beta Phi Monmouth Duo and a Christmas party with the Betas for the underprivileged children of the Lafayette area.

TGIFing started early this year for the Fuzzies with their annual Bar-B-Q. After giving a royal welcome to their dads on Dad's Day, the girls joined the AGRs in "polishing the apple" with a faculty dessert. Then came one of the most fantastic Skull and Crescent water fights ever, completely drenching the Fuzzie house. However, the newly decorated bumroom stayed dry, and the girls were able to plan an open house with the ΑΞΔs and help the Beta Sigs spread the Christmas spirit to the orphans of the Lafayette area.

Phi Kappa Tau

Reflections of a Phi Tau decor are born on the run, with seniors traditionally chasing across campus in multicolored underwear after their cords. Little Sisters came to the rescue with matching costumes and, in turn, were decorated with Harvard red and gold pledge pins and delegate buttons from Pennsylvania. Chasing past the wrappings which had converted the house into an overstuffed Christmas package, the brothers saw the scene transformed again into Mt. Olympus for the Atlantis Party. Both the race and the line of ornaments came to a halt at the foot of the supreme decoration—that of the Dream Girl with a dozen red roses.

"Electric Music for the Mind and Body," the theme of the Delt's open house with the Thetas, and a Pajama Party brought some rather questionable costumes to the Shelter this fall. To restore order, the spring pledge class cleaned up the new bridge, and the Delts and Chi Os entertained the orphans of Cary Home at a Christmas party. TGIFs were popular throughout the year, as was the Hawaiian Dance in the spring; and, believe it or not, the brothers actually did get a new addition started before 1970.

Alpha Phi

Running throughout the campus, the Alpha Phi actives and pledges joined forces to search for "peanut butter and jelly" type house treasures, only to find themselves the cause of a caravan of singing and merry-making after their fall feast. Followed by a black and white, tail-wagging Sis, the Phis canvassed the campus again, gathering contributions for the Heart Fund and pennies for the UMOC Campus Chest. Exchange visits, theme playing, and trade dinners with an extra surprise spread the spirit abroad. But journeying stopped as cries of grass skirts for $A\phi$ Hawaiian Mock P representatives raged across the campus.

Deck the brothers with boughs of holly. Fa-la-la-la-la-la-la-la-la. Dressed in long johns red and jolly. Hold it! What kind of drinking song is that? There must be a Red and Green pledge dance at the Alpha Sig house. It couldn't be their Black and White formal, and they sure don't dress like that at the Acre Shaker. Somehow I can't quite believe they got a first as the best dressed house during Greek Week. But Mufti, the A ξ ϕ mascot, likes them no matter how they're dressed.

Ice cream never tasted as good as it did at the nineteenth annual Sigma Chi Farm Frolic. Once again the Sigs pulled out their ice cream makers and haywagons as the year started out great for all who attended. Psychedelic lights and brightly colored flowers filled the Sig house for their fall dance, and excitement reached its peak as the Sigma Chis crowned their Sweetheart at the Blue Formal. With spring came something new for the Delta Delta chapter . . . Derby Day.

Dad's Day wasn't good enough for the Sammys, so they waited until the Minnesota game and invited the whole family to Purdue for a tremendous Parents' Weekend. But this was only after they recovered from their "Grand Finale to Greek Week"—the Sammy Open House. When the weather got colder, the Pledge class decided to warm things up with their party on an Ancient Roman theme. Then to get in the spirit of representing Oregon in Mock P, the Sammys greeted Senator Wayne Morse with a large welcoming committee and band.

Phi Kappa Sigma

Early in the year, the Skulls and their dates "took a trip" to Haite—Ashbury as Phi Kappa Sigma sponsored a hippie dance. Flowers, multi-colored sugar cubes, and music by the Bare Facts all added to the psychedelic atmosphere. As Christmas approached, the Skulls, with the help of four thousand artificial snowflakes, transformed the house into a Swiss chalet for the annual Ski Party. Soon after, the Skulls invited Santa Claus to join in a party for fourteen needy children from the Lafayette area. With the coming of the second semester, the Little Sisters of the Skull and Bones helped fight off the Viet-Cong as the Skulls planned a "Guerilla Warfare" pledge dance.

Kappa Sigma

Mr. Lonely and the Teardrops, the Kappas, and the DGs joined the Kappa Sigs in two street dances early this fall. No lull followed as the men invited the Chi Os to enjoy the winter atmosphere of the Pearl Formal. Knights, squires, and fair young damsels were next to invade the Kappa Sig house, transformed into a moated castle for the Medieval holiday. The '67 class of Little Sisters of the Skull and Crescent were the ladies-in-waiting for the gallant pledges of K . ξ

Delta Sigma Phi

Who broke the windows in the Delta Sigma Phi house? Even a stream of form letters to the other houses on the Island didn't turn up the culprit. Anyway, the snow and icy winds did add plenty of atmosphere to the Christmas dance. Some of the brothers liked the weather so much that they traveled to Norway to ski during semester break. But the boys had to hurry back so they wouldn't miss the Sailor's Ball and the coronation of the Delta Sigma Phi Dream Girl at the annual Carnation Ball. Yes, even broken windows didn't seem to hamper the Delta Sig spirit!

Alpha Chi Omega

Although greatly outnumbered, the impregnable ten Alpha Chi waiters outpassed, outran, and outscored the Alpha Chi football team of thirty. Off the football field, the excitement continued as the Alpha Chis captured Debris and Homecoming Queen crowns. The new Greek Week talent show first place trophy was also carried home by Alpha Chis. To commemorate their duo founding at DePauw University, the Alpha Chis and Thetas held a "Dynamic DePauw Duo" trade dinner. The climax of a year's work was representing Pennsylvania at Mock P with the Phi Taus and the Delta Sigs.

Delta Upsilon

"DU It!" was the cry of the DUs, fun-loving boys ready to take just a little time from extremely long studious hours to indulge in a campus blast, the "DU It!" The cry "DU It!" arose again. This time it was an all-campus Open House with the AOIIs. The catch-word was magic! The cry rang out and there were roses for their annual Rose Formal. So the "Year of the DUs" closed with their cry awaiting another year of use.

Lambda Chi Alpha

Fire! the Lambda Chi house—this was the sad story of September 29. Orphaned by the disastrous fire of the Notre Dame game weekend, the Lambda Chis moved into the old Delta Sigma Phi house. As Christmas approached, they became concerned over the shortage of "unattached" tree bark to decorate their walls for their informal Ski Lodge dance, but the Little Sisters of the Crescent eased their anxiety with caroling and a Christmas breakfast. Kidnapping became a profitable business for the Lambda Chis as they ransomed sorority house mothers for Campus Chest. And the Easter Bunny, rumoured to be a Lambda Chi, sponsored an Egg Hunt for the children of West Lafayette. The Lambda Chis ended the year looking forward to a new LCA club house in the fall.

Sigma Nu

Barbeques, potato chips, and pop drew students out into the frisky autumn wind to enjoy the Sigma Nu-Pi Beta Phi barbeque early this fall. After enjoying the informality of the barbeque, the Sigma Nus showed their "classic" style by inviting the Alpha Phis to join them in a wild Roman orgy. Wine, women, and short togas made all the brothers agree that the orgy was a frolicking success. Classic mini fashions were replaced by the modern versions at the Mod party, which resisted a Viet-Cong invasion for one more week. Cornish hen, wild rice, and Chablis graced the tables at the Christmas White Rose Formal, as the desks, chairs, and TV stayed home.

Flying South early this fall, the Crows sponsored a wild Miami Beach Party. With the help of the pledges, they transformed their house into a beach hut complete with a wharf which served as a novel entryway. Flying back to the Pi Phis, they flapped their wings to the beat of a street dance. As night fell and the Crows settled into their nests, they bustled themselves with Mock P.

Phi Sigma Kappa

Charlie Brown started believing in the "Great Watermelon" during his visit to the Purdue campus on September 30. The Phi Sigma Kappas and the Kappas invited him to join in the annual Melon Fest. He returned to the Phi Sig house at Christmas to participate in the "Christmas Exchange" planned in honor of their dates. Charlie was made supervisor of the fresh paint job the Phi Sigs planned for their house. When the big job was done, Charlie's only comment was, "Good Grief!"

Beta Sigma Psi

"Man the Batt Boat," exclaimed the brothers of Beta Sigma Psi as they raced their four man kayak in competition against four other fraternities. Besides coping awards on the Wabash, the Beta chapter was cited as the strongest branch east of the Mississippi. Docking up, the brothers collected thirty Little Sisters of the Gold Rose to help swab the decks for rush and enjoy frequent parties on the completely redecorated lower deck. Ahoy! The land in sight was West Virginia, so the men jumped out of the boats and rounded up the Sigma Kappas to help with the politicking.

Phi Kappa Theta

Phi Kappa Theta dug up some dirt underneath the checkered tower out in Tower Acres—not to find hidden treasure, or to strike water, but to celebrate the groundbreaking day of their future 95-man home to be finished for the fall of '68. Eager to feel at home, the Phi Kaps were on the scene helping with the Acre Shaker, advertising an open house with AΞΔ, and making mucho merriment at their second Annual Root Beer Blast with the Alpha Phis. Thirty-two pixie little sisters surprised the brothers by artistically decorating the house with water and IBM cards—topping the excitement with shaving cream on walls, ceiling, and, of course, Phi Kaps.

Alpha Omicron Pi

Attempting to introduce their new housemother to Purdue's social aspects, the AOΠs joined up with the DUs to sponsor an early fall open house. At least this gave the housemother some idea of what to expect when the acre began its annual shake . . . a function that she found much easier to predict than their first pledge-active football game which has still not been concluded. When the snow fell and Christmas was in the air, the girls planned an old-fashioned Christmas that also helped acquaint the housemother with the girls, for each couple made an ornament representing their dating status. In fact, the housemother was so well-initiated by the time the AOΠ roses began to bloom that she could hardly wait for her second time around.

Alpha Gamma Rho

Picking up from the Blockbuster, the AGRs and their little sisters, the Rho-mates, took to the farm to stage their annual Barnyard Ball. The boys, bragging about the crowning of the AGR Sweetheart, dusted off the straw and traded their overalls for formal attire and the Pink Rose Formal. It was hard to keep the guys down on the farm after they saw gay Paris with their spring "Club Royale" party, complete with bunny hostesses. Well, can you blame them?

Pi Kappa Phi

Hooowl! Don't tell me Hud is trying to help his brother Pi Phis sing again. Maybe he's trying to warn the boys that someone is crawling up the fire escape—after all, he doesn't know the pledges too well and probably thinks someone is going to steal the $\pi\phi$ pies. How can you have a pie eating contest with πKA or a pie fight with the Aϕs without pies? He could be howling because he accidently landed on the trade party slide and doesn't like that slippery, mid-air feeling, or perhaps he got caught on the merry-go-round at the Island Fling and is howling because he's dizzy. Then again, it's said that their new addition is really something to howl about.

Chi Omega

"Whoo," asked agent 00 owl, "are those girls going into the Beta house in pajamas?" He first picked up their trail, roving from door to door in an array of clothes, pumpkin caroling with their little brothers. Following them away from their ChiO Casanova serenade, he stopped for a dance at the "A Go-Go" on 4th Street and lost his trail. He ran into the house only to see an upside down Christmas tree and the ChiO Dads doing the T-Box wearing dresses. Poor owl tripped over the model of the new addition, bumped into some maps of California for Mock P, and was shoved back out with the mad rush of mugs. He figured the girls were off to decorate for the Pearl Formal or to help at Cary Home, but they really went to the library to keep their number one scholastic rating on campus.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon

"Rah! Rah! Bon! Ton! Sigma Alpha Epsilon!" cried the SAEs as they initiated the year with twelve new little Sisters of Minerva. Rewarding the girls for their enthusiastic intramural support, the brothers treated their little sises to a hayride. The cheering didn't stop there for even the housemothers were ready to applaud the SAEs after the all-campus housemothers' banquet. The men themselves joined in the cheers and preparations for the chapter's seventy-fifth anniversary celebration. Cheers turned to sighs, though, for the SAEs annual formal dance.

Kappa Alpha Psi

Hoping to be recognized by IFC before the end of the year, Kappa Alpha Psi strove to meet the membership requirement by pledging 14 new men. Under the inspired leadership of "Gumps," the Kappas projected new fall house plans. The men of Kappa Alpha Psi joined with the Q's and the Delta's for a "soulfull" dance at the Van Orman and in the spring challenged the Q's to a basketball game, determined to prove that "there's nothing as grand as a Kappa man."

Kentucky in Mock P? Now ain't that somethin'. Them there hillbillies are really putting on the dog. The yearly success of the Island Fling has plum gone to their heads. Why, it was going around that they played host to some yanks from Indiana, Illinois, and Michigan at a regional Delta Chi conference last March. Politics changes things. They even wore shoes to their Black and White Formal.

Pi Kappa Alpha

Happy Birthday Pi Kappa Alpha! Out of the 100 year old birthday cake jumped first the Dream Girl Formal and the open house with X Ω and then the coed baseball trip to Chicago, the newest feat of all. The ice cream ran down the Founders Day Celebration as the ever faithful Rebel reved up its engine for Grand Prix. The topping of the social pudding, however, was the National Centennial Convention at Richmond, Virginia, the "bakery" of Pi Kappa Alpha.

Evans Scholars

Twenty-four former caddies toted their bags of iron sticks onto the courts—Terry, not tennis. This was the beginning of a new chapter at Purdue. When the men weren't studying to maintain their scholastic standings, they could be found out on the Purdue links watching the "birdies." Between golfing jokes, plans were being made to move into a new house.

Sigma Phi Epsilon

Bursting forth with the same spirit and zeal as their new canine mascot, the Sig Eps co-sponsored Hook and his fellow Cryan Shames at the Blockbuster. Hosts à la mode, the brothers offered after-game open houses and were constantly giving lessons to independents in the use of snow. The winter formal exhibited their social finesse that has become standard for the Sig Ep gentlemen. Sponsoring State Day in late spring, they again played host—this time to all E Indiana chapters.

Omega Psi Phi

A common sight at the Co-Rec during the early winter was the Omega Psi Phi basketball team practicing for their annual game with the freshman. Although unsuccessful with the frosh, the Q's easily whipped Kappa Alpha Psi later in the season. Off the basketball court the brothers found time for a "soul"-cial function with the Deltas and the Kappas.

Phi Delta Theta

Hardship seemed to be a byword this year for the men of Phi Delta Theta. In the fall the Phis had their annual parking lot problem which was settled only after many severe warnings and tickets. Then winter came and the Phi Delts felt its full force. A failure in the heating caused a massive freeze-up during Christmas vacation and left the brothers with no heat or water and 130 holes in their pipes! Escaping unscathed, the brothers were again slighted when they were forced to evacuate the second floor during Mother's Day weekend. Even with all these hardships, the Phi Delts managed to place high in intramurals and earn the biggest improvement in scholarship in the past five years.

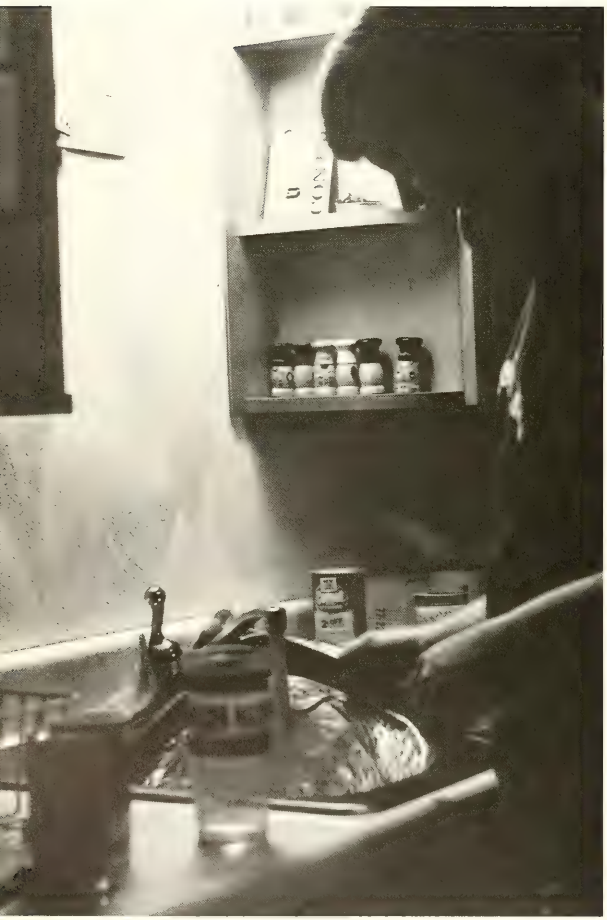
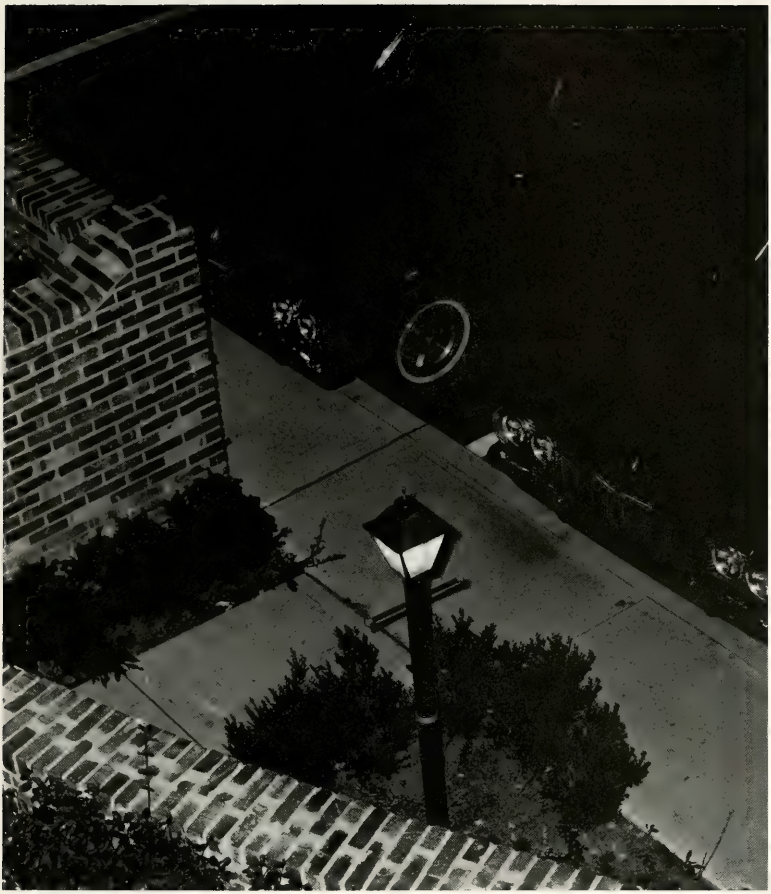
the apartment dweller

Parties, parties, parties! I'm so sick of parties! As a typical apartment dweller, I have just given my 75th party of the year, but I think this time it may be my last; I hear the landlord at the door. Oh well, so what if I'm evicted. There'll be no more cleaning after these Saturday night parties, no more tasteless meals, no more "rent overdue" notices. I almost forgot something—there'll also be no more independence, no more being alone just to think. Yes, I forgot something—there'll be no more freedom.

"I just can't take these Saturday 7:30's."



Dishes—a drudgery of apartment life.



"This can't be the place, it's quiet!"

SCA unifies co-ops

Unifying the action of sixteen co-op houses, the Student Co-operative Association stressed various social functions for its members which centered around SCA week, its trade parties, and the crowning of the SCA queen. Many members also worked on the Venture or provided better housing programs, while one boy from each house composed a basketball team which competed against the Purdue freshman team at home games. From sponsoring open houses to developing intramural sport teams, SCA ripened an active and unitary year for its members.

ATs rate in tournament

Have you ever seen a femininely styled hook shot? Evidentally you haven't seen the girls of Ann Tweedale dribble down the basketball court. Participating in the all women's intramural sports tournament, the ATs cultivated winners in each division. As they switched from their baseball spikes to those with a higher heel, the referees' whistles changed to those with a more wolfish tone; it seemed the girls were on their way to one of their trade dinners with Marwood and Rochdale co-ops and Triangle fraternity.

Chauncey tows top honors

With hands of iron and muscles of steel, the men of Chauncey House pulled themselves into the runners-up position of the intramural co-op tug-of-war contest. Dragging their opponents through the mud, they continued to tow them from the slushy dirt to the Purdue Royal Livestock Show to view Chauncey's exhibit. Replacing their muddy rope for a greasy monkey wrench, the men maintained an outstanding record in the Grand Prix race and celebrated this feat by sponsoring trade parties with Maclure and Twin Pines co-ops.

Circle Pines rotates spirit

CIRCLE PINES--Back Row: M. Richardson, P. Wichman, D. Delau, J. Burgess, B. Dallmann, J. Hotaling, D. Skinner, L. Werline, J. Kacmar, Mrs. Allen, M. Rhodeh, A. Kackmar, G. Peters, R. Goings, T. With hay on the floor and folk songs in the air, the men of Circle Pines opened their house for their first trade function of the year and hosted Ann Tweedale women in a grubby, Halloween party. Time for trade parties was scarce, however, as the men prepared for the co-op intramural sports contest. Their efforts were rewarded when they won the softball championship and placed second in tennis and basketball. When sports were lagging, trade functions sprang up again with a Twin Pine trade dinner and an Old Master discussion accompanied by Shoemaker.

Hambleton, J. Rau. First Row: D. Sella, G. Haettinger, S. Knoy, G. Paarlberg, Tiny, D. McDonald, D. Brooks, B. Hiatt.

it's a dog's life

Tiny, Club 25's St. Bernard, may not look so tiny, but he certainly looks very stylish. Wonder what he wore to the co-op's open house following the Michigan State game or to their party for underprivileged children. You can bet he was the center of attention at the club's trade parties with Twin Pines and Ann Tweedale. Losing the spotlight for awhile, Tiny watched his masters laboriously work on Mock P petitions to win New York State.

DOVER--Left to Right: R. Smith, D. Replogle, S. Knecht, R. Eberly, R. Bischoff, M. Franks, L. Williams, M. J. Walker, T. J. Franke, D. Davis, A. Roach, L. Gaiser.

the tales of Dover

Sleepy Hollow set the scene for the men of Dover's fall picnic and was complete with everything but the "headless horseman." Icabod Crane himself would have been startled if he had seen the glowing fire of the Dover Ski Lodge. But inside, the party certainly didn't resemble the grave yard that good old "Icky" rode by. Dancing, games, and fun helped warm the couples and blot out burial ground solemness at this annual affair. Traveling down the winding road, the men of Dover not only tried to conquer the "headless horseman" but also a win in softball.

FAIRWAY--Back Row: J. Vuskalns, T. M. Bareither, R. Bushorn, D. Cummings. Second Row: C. N. Weilbaker, K. McFall, B. W. Fagg, G. K. Spence, M. E. Nicholson, J. E. Modesitt, D. Bailey, F. Glenwood gains by losing

Finding the time to paint was a real challenge for the women of Glenwood when they gathered for their many sign painting parties. Everyone knows socializing and painting just don't mix, and these girls couldn't resist the construction of new companionship. This production showed up in their parties with Rochdale, Circle Pines, Club 25, and Kneale. The result—many friends, but few pep rally victories. In between parties, the girls' Old Master frequented the house. Who knows, he may have made it to a party.

Fairway pars year

Fairway men teed off the year with a straight shot and hopes of a new house. However, the ball bounced through the rough, and the men became content with combining efforts to rejuvenate the house with new floors, fresh paint, and a thorough cleaning. The fourth green saw a slice shot as each of these pros hooked onto an underprivileged child and made their Christmas par with other children's. The remainder of the year found a very clear fairway for the men of Fairway co-op.

GLENWOOD--Back Row: R. Church, M. Poncsak, M. Lefforge, B. Keene, S. Hobson, S. Aylesworth. Third Row: S. Komasinski, R. Gangwer, K. Good, J. Hall, L. Foster. Second Row: S. Wilson, G. Couch, Mrs. Braun, N. Morris, J. Carow. First Row: C. Patzka, M. Gaiser, J. Gingerich, D. Love, N. Hein, J. Miller, L. Dow.

Kneale energizers

Flashing black lights and a motley of flowers paved the way for the men of Kneale's "Flowever Power Party" with Fowler Courts. Exploding with a slightly different kind of power called energy, these men hosted several atom smashers with Twin Pines, Ann Tweedale, and many of the women's dorms. Fusing their energy with Christmas spirit, they became adopted parents to ten orphans and, through gifts and dinners, helped detonate the children's own Christmas power.

KNEALE--Back Row: J. Boyd, K. Sherwin, B. Lindvall, S. Doud, D. Bohs, R. Williams, D. Vawter, B. Dase, L. Stenger, M. Fish, R. Lash. Second Row: J. Gardner, D. Whan, M. Moesner, R. A. Warren, M. "Guys and dolls" was not only the thesis of the women of Maclure's sport participation this year, but also the speculation of their social activity. Given the fact that "guys and dolls" do work well together, these girls developed the hypothesis that trade functions would prove such a statement. After several dinner experiments with State House, Chauncey, and the Theta Taus, party lectures with Rochdale and Fairway, and a Halloween lab with Dover, the theory was formulated, found faultless, and further developed throughout the remaining year.

Marwood sets style

Letting their imaginations run wild, the men of Marwood staged a "clash party" where the password was "obnoxious colors and fun." Changing from stripes and checks to basketball trunks, hopefully not of the same style, the men participated in the co-op intramural basketball tournament. Putting their basketball skills to other uses, the Marwood "Mets" dribbled to Terry Courts for a trade dinner and back to their home floor for a gala Christmas decorating party.

Rochdale functions

What's better than one house full of Rochdale men? Would you believe two houses. Even a house plus an annex couldn't hold the enthusiasm seen at Rochdale's social functions this year. Trade parties with the Phi Mus, Zetas, and several of the women's co-ops seemed to prove the "movability" of these guys. And what about those "21" parties—enthusiasm plus. The year settled as they hosted their Old Master with the Fijis.

guarded Sherman hosts parties

Have you ever seen such a vicious looking watchdog? Maybe vicious is the wrong word, but watchdog fits perfectly. Just ask the men of Sherman House. These guys had a permanent chaperone, as Nicki turned into a watchguard and hosted his master's trade parties with Earhart and Meredith Halls and helped Santa Claus deliver gifts at their Christmas party for underprivileged children. Unfortunately, Nicki couldn't help the pledges prepare their initation gift for the actives. If he had, it might have been finished a lot sooner.

Shoemaker reigns over holidays

Hot pepperoni pizza and sizzling gossip went hand in hand when the girls of Shoemaker joined the other women's co-ops in a pizza party gab fest. Later, the "Cobblers" exchanged pizza for hot chocolate and gossip for Christmas carols and, with the Crows, serenaded the dorms. Marwood and Kneale houses also saw the girls of Shoemaker during the Christmas season with trade parties ranging from a "Who can look most like Rudolph" theme to a gift carrying trip to Cary Home.

STATE HOUSE--Back Row: E. Snouwaert, K. A. Miller, F. Feigel, R. Bare, M. Vargo, D. C. Miller, M. Miner, D. Nagy, L. Eshelman, G. Humnicky, S. Hill, C. Banks, L. Weitkamp. Second Row: T. Stellar Brothers restore vigor

No, the Stellar Brothers didn't make cough drops—that was the Smith Brothers; however, the men of Stellar Brothers co-op did construct a cure for first semester boredom. They called this remedy trade parties, prescribing dinners with Twin Pines and Ann Tweedale and a dance with Maclure as perfect antidotes. Speeches by foreign students and Peace Corp representatives made for a total recovery from such a deadly disease.

State House favors coeds

"There is nothing like a dame" could have been the motto of the men of State House this year. With twenty eight little sisters and five State House sweethearts, one from each women's co-op, these men couldn't resist being a little prejudiced toward the "weaker sex." Prejudice is often said to go along with pride, and the State House men displayed their Jane Austen characteristics by working with Twin Pines on Mock P, researching on the state of Washington, and hosting trade parties with Glenwood, Maclure, and Twin Pine co-ops.

The TPs, sometimes called the girls of Twin Pines co-op, painted flowers on their faces, dirtied their clothes, and began the year with a peaceful demonstration they disguised as a "hippie" party. Switching the paint from their faces to a football sign, the girls participated in last fall's pep rally contest with NE Cary. The smell of turpentine prevailed as the girls cleaned off all splatters and smudges and staged a paint free, homecoming open house and later a Home Demonstrators tea.

Pendragon guides; men's halls follow

Pendragon, the campus honorary for men's residence hall leaders, worked throughout the year with the purpose of discussing and coordinating men's hall activities and policies. A major fall objective was to coordinate orientation for all of the freshman men. Pendragon also did much work on arrangements for a coed dorm, starting with a study on whether students were in favor of the plan. Also, this organization, along with women's Interhall Council, innovated the Residence Hall Seminars. Pendragon's main purpose in this undertaking was to make people more aware of the social and educational aspects of group living, with definite guidelines to the improvement of the present conditions.

Owen captures Reisner award

Applying the idea that an education means more than 16 credit hours a semester, Owen Hall added athletic and social functions to Purdue's educational opportunities. A hall forum featuring outstanding student speakers provided an outlet for opinions, problems, and ideas and contributed to the capture of the Reisner award for top performance in speech competition. Recognition came to Owen Hall, too, as the men gained the intramural track championship. On the social scope, the Hussars were transformed into tuxedoed escorts for their dates at Owen's formal Christmas dance, "Snowball," as the hall added another activity to its varied agenda.

NE finds Florida in thought only

Combined with the traditional "start of school" vigor, the autumn hayride sponsored by the men of Owen NE generated enough enthusiasm to carry the 400 Hussars through a year well-stocked with trade dinners, pep rallies, and dances. Parties and Friday nights took on new twists as the unit bolstered Boilermaker spirits with post pep rally celebrations. By putting that same steam into unit teams, they received recognition for athletic participation. With an eye to the serious, unit members again sponsored their annual scholarship award. When April arrived, thoughts, not bodies, strayed toward Florida, as NE represented that state in Mock P.

NW winters wet, wild

Even the bitter winter atmosphere failed to affect Northwest Owen's spirits. A cassino party complete with gambling and dancing reflected the unit's eagerness to add novelty to their social activities. Sports, too, defied conventionality as a 13-inch snow prompted a unit-sponsored sleigh ride. In the spring the unit's more active members applied their talents to posters and publicity, offering their support to Michigan in Purdue's Mock P.

SE "Rino" gamblers break casino bank

Owen SE turned the east dining room into a gambling casino for the "Rino Blast," featuring roulette wheels, black jack, assorted cage dice games, and free root beer for everyone. The Hustlers borrowed as much money from the house as they wanted and competed to see who could make the best gains. Prizes, consisting of anything from second hand G.I. shoelaces to a U.S. emergency can of water, were given to the best and worst gamblers of the house. SW selection party names status

Beginning with the annual freshman tug-of-war and culminating with a unit-sponsored Chicago baseball game trip, the men of Southwest Owen were constantly on the move. Rewards came as the men participated whole-heartedly in sports activities by earning the highest number of points scored in their intramural program. Southwest's and Meredith Hall's joint rally election for a Mock P vice-presidential candidate represented numerous, but enthusiastically spent hours of work. Feeling deserving of a unit nickname as reward for an action-filled year, the men remedied Southwest's unnamed status in their March selection party.

Tarkington offers varied social program

TARKINGTON PRESIDENT--Jerry Gordon.

"Second place in the all-campus division of Homecoming Sign competition goes to . . . Tarkington Hall." And so, amid the shouts of ecstasy and the excitement of victory, Tarkington Hall began a full and active year. A trade party with coeds of Ball State along with the annual formal, "Snowflake Fantasy," added variety to Tarkington's social calendar. Unwilling to neglect other aspects of college life, they expanded their sports scope, presented to them by Coach King, who, along with several team members, showed films and talked with the men. The Halberdiers have great hopes for continuing this innovation, as well as originating new and promising ideas for the constant improvement of Tarkington.

"And the smokestack will blow up at exactly 12:03."

NE broadcast--floor parties

The fall semester was one of pride in accomplishments as NE Tarkington, along with NW and Meredith SW, was awarded the state of Tennessee for the Mock P convention. NE's delegates were chosen in February and worked enthusiastically toward a fun and knowledgeable representation. Christmas brought something unusual to NE, for it abandoned the idea of an all unit party and originated separate floor parties which soon became popular. As the year's finale, the unit sponsored its annual Spring picnic at Turkey Run, with trail hiking, touch football, and broiling steaks.

It is those infrequent breaks that one looks forward to most.

NW rebels rally behind black dress

The Rebels—that's their name and they're out to prove they mean business. They are the guys dressed in black whose many talents go unnoticed. The freshman hazing program and picnic are their latest craze. Behind the scenes they play bridge, attempt to study, and make foul play—decorating the johns. Yes, they're the Rebels—dressed in black. Ask anyone, they'll know what you mean.

There's nothing like a Friday night home with the guys.

SE foils soon meet cheerful successes

Failure and success intermingled in Tarkington SE's year. If any one hit their fall dance, they were one of the nine people that attended. A bright break came when their basketball team went undefeated—that is until the first round of finals. Spirits were soon mended though as arm wrestling matches became the sport to watch, with first and fourth floors badgering for the in-hall victory.

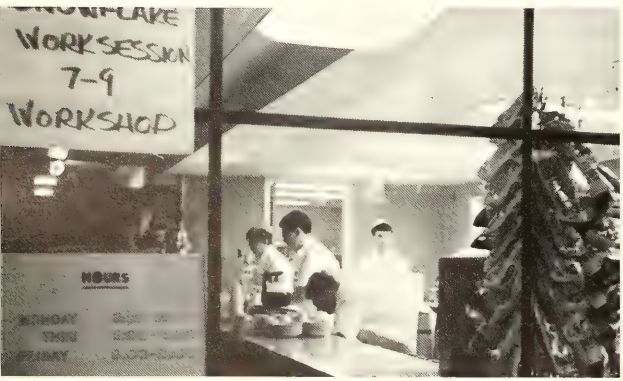
SW concoction--unit bite

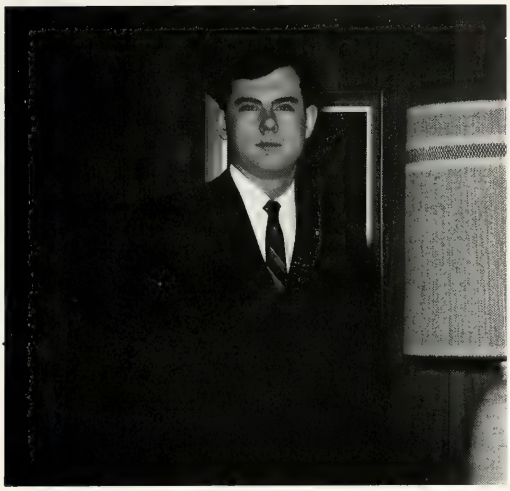
Southwest Tarkington's "gung-ho" social year began the first day of September and concluded in the late Spring. Starting with the football season, SW was represented at every pep rally, and though not carrying away a first prize, they scored high in spirit and loyalty. Their fall picnic and hay ride were rated tops among the successes, and their creation of the "Unit Bite"—Sunday evening meals of hot dogs and cold cuts followed by football and basketball movies—was a favorite with the Tarkington men. The year was completed with the Mock P convention as the SW delegates spoke for New Jersey.

"I said, will you please get down from there and work."



Some work and some play, but everyone is a student.

Wiley grade average no accident



WILEY PRESIDENT--David Stubbins.

Wiley's record for retaining the highest grade average in the men's halls for the last twenty-four semesters is not an accident. Each fall the Executive Council starts the semester off on an academic note by inviting Dr. E. Glenn Griffin of the School of Humanities to deliver his program on "How to Study." This year the Senate appropriated funds to form a club workshop. Three hundred dollars worth of equipment was purchased, and an empty room was set aside for the men to use. To relieve preexam anxieties, the freshman council sponsored an all campus hootenany the weekend before the big battery of tests.

Northeast Wiley men's favorite sport included rallying on the island in the middle of the Tippecanoe River with the SE-X girls, better known as the girls from Southeast Meredith. McCUTCHEON PRESIDENT--Wayne Roach.

McCutcheon Hall remains segregated

Earnest petitioning plus ardent campaigning equalled success for the Highlanders of McCutcheon Hall, as they fought the hall's planned conversion to a coed dorm. Assured of their futures, the men rallied to win the all campus tug-of-war and competed eagerly in all hall euchre and pinochle tournaments. The imparting of a bagpipe band provided atmosphere for the traditional formal, "Scotia Fantasia." Adding to the hall fame, "Wolf," McCutcheon's own Hell's Angel, crusaded and won the title of Ugliest Man on Campus. His victory allowed the Highlanders to retire the trophy for the third consecutive year, adding triumph to the record.

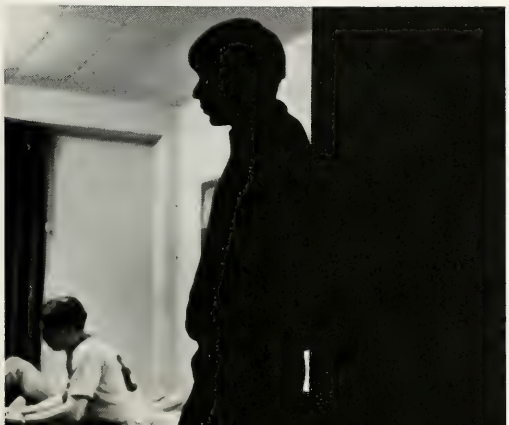
"A" action alters with seasons

"No man is an island, no man stands alone . . ."



After emerging victorious in the all-campus tug-of-war, unit A turned its enthusiasm toward planning parties. Little Abner prevailed as the theme for one cool November party. As fall turned to spring, the atmosphere again changed, and an April party brought the transformation of the dining room into a coffee house scene. Not forgetting academia, the unit council invited faculty fellows to dinner to discuss scholastic interests. With the arrival of summer, unit A reflected on a year of successful athletic, social, and academic pursuits.

"B" flame flares; glow guides group

Capturing first place awards in early pep rally contests was the spark that lit McCutcheon B. Not letting the flicker die, Unit B warmed themselves at a colorful casino party, inviting the entire hall. Still flaming, the men worked in cooperation with Unit A on Mock P activities which resulted in much knowledge and research about the political aspects of Illinois. Going full flame now, a controversy over dress standards brought the unit council together to work toward the revision of the ancient rule. With this group participation and cooperation, the hall Christmas dinner and dance, "Scotia Fantasia," glowed brightly.

The Charon, a free newspaper published with the idea of "Making the Purdue student more aware," was the first in a series of novel ideas presented to the campus by McCutcheon Hall, unit D. The unit council, working on students' rights, initiated the idea of opening the dining room during finals and continually serving coffee and doughnuts. The culmination of the major unit activities arrived in late spring when the Rhode Island delegation enthusiastically attended the Mock P convention.

Harrison makes tracks

Pink Pussycat tracks all over campus marked Harrison's winning Homecoming display—"Purdue is the Cat's Meow." Tracks in the snow led many a couple to Harrison's Christmas spectacle of colored lights, tall tresses, and soft music. The pussy cat's feet pattered along through a busy year as Cavaliers planned their winter dance and a party for the underprivileged children. Creating a park at the northeast corner of the hall, complete with trees and benches, the men continued tracks along stones engraved with the year of each graduating class. The largest print for Harrison, however, was left with their all-out campaign to make their hall coeducational.

" . . . and with only ten minutes until the test, and only 52 pages to go."

A whooping all-campus Saloon party sponsored by the Harrison A cowboys proved to be a spectacular event. Complete with peanut shells covering the floor, the wild west saloon featured gambling, dancing, and old time flicks. Bar maids from the women's residence halls served root beer from the grill converted bar to the drinking card sharks. On a contrasting agenda was the scholastically orientated Trivia Bowl composed of competing unit teams within Harrison. Harrison A's other activities included a trip for orphans to the Indianapolis zoo as well as intramural participation.

Unit B big brothers orientate frosh

Harrison B kicked off to the dad's this year with a specially planned Dad's Day in the fall. The team huddled together in a Big Brother program to be sure that freshmen were in the swing of campus activities and trade parties. At mid-year the boys received a pep talk and dinner with head basketball coach George King. Ending the game with a successful run down the field, B unit captured the bowling victory.

boundless energy in Harrison C

Psychedelic sounds clammered through the halls as Harrison C readied for their dance by urging their pets to practice for the frog-jumping contest. council energies funnelled to charity

No sooner had freshman orientation finished when cries of "Let's get away from it all" were heard from enthusiastic Cary Clubbers. Council energies were funnelled toward philanthropic events by providing needy families with Christmas baskets and sponsoring a child in Viet Nam. To keep the men socially alive, the council sponsored Duke Ellington and his band at the Cary-Excalibur Winter Formal. After a well-earned study break from the first round of finals, council men sprang back to life and launched a series of spring escapades to keep Cary dwellers sufficiently occupied.

"A" axiom advocates football, frolic

Towers provide landmark for freshman and returning Cary inmates.

Emerging with ideas of interaction, freshmen and upperclassmen of Cary A upheld the axiom, "the sum is greater than its parts." This interchange was kicked off through the freshman-upperclass football game. Although the frosh played a hard fought game, the upperclassmen pulled through with the winning score. A Unit Smoker provided a chance for the greenies to bring their elders down to earth again. Through skits and slams, the message came through loud and clear.

B's leave hive, look for honey

What a way to make a living!

Cary B's annual fall hayride proved quite an experience for the outdoorsmen. Scattered showers forced the planned cookout into the main lounge. To add difficulties to the evening, it was soon discovered that the wagon had no springs. Cries of, "the riding's a little rough," and "hey, watch those curves," were heard throughout the night. In spite of the first bumpy ride, the journey became smoother as the year progressed, with an abundance of sign-painting parties, the successful completion of an automated Homecoming sign and an end-of-the-year fling at Happy Hollow.

Unit C playboys keep club keyed

Unit C, known to all for its eight foot mascot, the blue bunny, ushered in the year with a psychedelic dance and an all-campus hootenany in the playboy club-room. Fall and spring picnics and the initiation of a little sister's program added diversity to unit activities. To display their athletic prowess, the men quickly filled their new trophy case with U-Sing and volleyball trophies, and their newly acquired Fall Golf Trophy. Intellectual pursuits were kept at a peak through help sessions and recognition of scholars.

Unit D gamblers get good deal

Many daring Purdue girls took their chances and placed odds on the men of Cary at the gambling party sponsored by the residents of Unit D. The men shuffled their ideas and pulled out some new tricks; their invention, a hootenany, involved the participation of the unit members backed by the performance of a few women students. The play that produced the most fanfare was the capturing of second place in Cary athletics. All-in-all, the year was a good deal.

NW Gators join lanes of Grand Prix

"Now all we need is the wine and the women."

Giving spirit to the slogan, "Gators Become Greater," the men of Cary NW became further acquainted with the faculty by inviting them over for dinner. With a flare for active participation in the unit, the frosh gators played and won a hard fought football game against the upperclassmen, upsetting them 12-6. After terminating its energetic intramural program, NW entered Grand Prix for the first time. The annual "razz" night completed the year, with underclassmen getting their last chance to badger departing seniors, and then cool the blows by giving them an unexpected treat.

NE focuses energy on frolic, sports

Parties, formal dinners, and picnics occupied most of the "spare" time of Cary NE. Enjoying Indian summer weather, the fun-loving inhabitants started the year on the right note with picnics at Happy Hollow and on the lawn of Earhart. Moving through the year, Cary NE participated in intramural sports, striving to improve on last year's third place finishes in tennis and the trike race.

Maybe if I ignore her, she'll disappear.

West "speakeasy" shows superiority

Everyone claims they're best, but West proves it. Freshmen were introduced to the West tradition of superiority by a "Speakeasy" party in the attic. The unit continued its tradition of political dominance by electing two Cary senators. Athletically, the men of West missed capturing last year's Cary intramural championship by a disappointing five points out of the fourteen hundred point margin. After agreeing that last year's team was not up to the usually high Western standards, the unit fought back to bring the records up to par.

Voodoo Island enhances East

To be alone, yet to share the quiet of an autumn walk.

Excelling in academics as well as sports, the men of Cary East strove to match last year's record of earning the highest index and capturing the intramural sports championship of Cary Quad. Starting the year by grabbing first place in the 16 inch softball and freshman rope pull, East continued it's winning tradition. Also active socially, the Unit highlighted it's social season with "Voodoo Island" and finished up the year with a trade party at Turkey Run State Park.

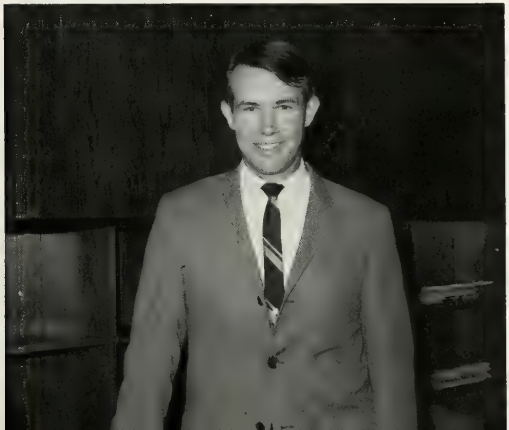
Fowler Councilmen break down barrier

Fowler Council took on a new role this year by publishing a bi-weekly newspaper, the Lance. Councilmen-editors found creative young journalists and turned them into aspiring cub reporters. A frequent front page news flash was the Fowler Faculty Fellows Program. The council worked to make this program strong, believing it valuable in breaking down the communications barrier between faculty and students. The Faculty Fellows, as a result, were frequently asked to spend an evening at Fowler.

"Gee, now I'm a bonafide Purdue Greenie!"

FOWLER PRESIDENT--Denny Cleaver.



Court One hosts President Hovde

Fowler Court Number One may have the same physical structure as the rest of the courts, and it may have the same number of people living in its rooms as the other courts, but it has one individual distinction that only it, of all the courts, can claim . . . One of the members of Court One was the hostess of President and Mrs. Hovde for a "typical" Sunday meal and an informal chat session. This occassion fired the girls up for the Faculty Fellows program. Not only did this program "boom," but increasing numbers of favorite faculty members were invited to the court for informal meals and discussions.

Court II conjures varsity challenge

When a group of students meet for the first time in the fall and begin to plan social activities for the coming year, the same ideas tend to crop up—trade parties, dances and hayrides. Fowler Court Two conjured up a new and exciting activity which drew upon the efforts of all its members. Dressed in their own unique uniforms, the team from Two attempted to defeat the varsity football team! Although their efforts were unsuccessful, the undaunted Courtiers convinced the varsity squad to serve as coaches for the inspired team from Two. With this added polish the girls stand ready to challenge any team; they may even charge admission.

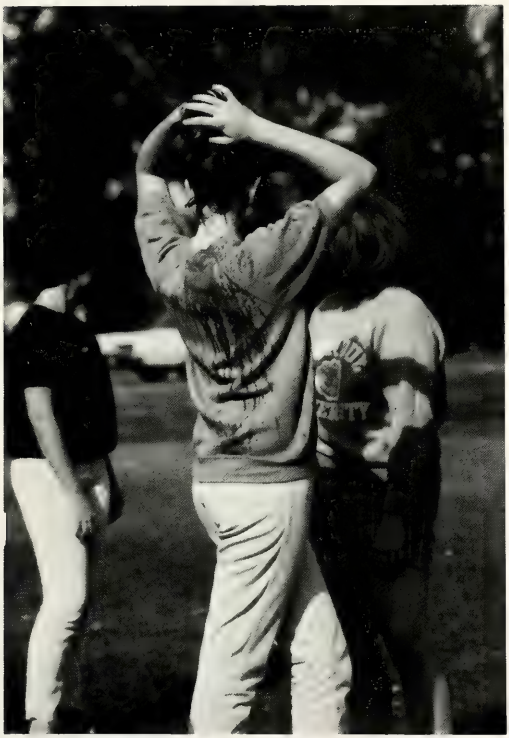
Court III unites amusement, assistance.



I'll never be ready for my big date tonight.

If you by chance walk through Court Three of Fowler Courts, you may be bombarded by superballs as they rickachet off the walls, sprayed with water as it is fired from one end of the hall to the other, smacked by a snowball as it is hurled across the court, or sereneded by one of their unique hootenanys. Having a good time is not the only past time in which Court Three indulges. The foil from two thousand cigarette packs collected before Christmas by the women of this unit bought a wooden leg for a crippled boy.

Court Four phone calls flavored

I knew my high school geometry would come in handy some day.

If it should be your opportunity to dial 32866 and you are greeted by "1240 Mule Barn, which ass do you want?" you will know that you have been connected with Fowler Court Four. Other than concocting unusual telephone greetings, the men of Court Four indulged in such traditions as after-dinner yell sessions and Saturday-night Kool-aid parties. Their view to the east could explain why they have never produced a winning team in intramurals—their non-academic interests lie next door.

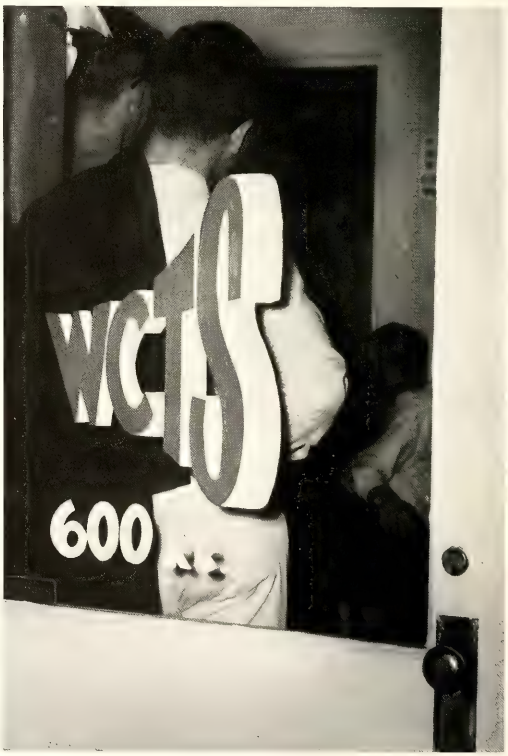
Court Five gimmicks catch campus cuties

"Step right up, girls! Free cokes to all who enter Court Five to sunbathe! You can't pass this one by, girls!" This gimmick was an attempt to gather the female sunbathers around the guys, only one of several unusual ideas put into action by Court Five. Free time was also spent in a more serious manner, as both senators from Fowler reside in Five. The fervor generated by these men piloted their ideas into creative channels.



"No, fellas, this is not the arena ticket office."

"Did you say I can change my major to euchre?"

Court Six blithe--no broken records

Bare essentials of Pete show the inward strength of Boilermakers.

A housing unit is not always a social unit. Sometimes it does not even strive for recognition academically, athletically, or otherwise. Fowler Court Six agrees that their unit is a group of sixteen men living together comfortably, not out to break any records but just enjoying life while they are getting an education.

switch makes Fowler House smug

While many H-Halls are debating whether or not to convert to coed living, Fowler Hall has decided that they are glad they made the switch! The presence of the opposite sex at meals makes for a more interesting atmosphere, not to mention how it refines one's manners. While other resident halls are out scouting for a partner, Fowler can look to itself—closer friendships make for one big happy family. The "Last Leaf," a hall semi-formal, and "Snowflake Fantasy," sponsored in conjunction with Tarkington and Harrison Halls in February, provided an opportunity to introduce outside friends to life at Fowler Courts.

"Hey, where is everybody?"

WOMEN'S INTERHALL COUNCIL PRESIDENT--Ann Metz.

WIC--a unifying formula

Take the three governors of the women's residence halls, add the thirteen presidents of each unit, throw in twelve honorary members, and you'll end up with a cohesive recipe known as WIC, or the Women's Interhall Council. WIC is the linking ingredient that seems to give all women's residence halls a common goal—unity. Freshmen orientation, a spring officers' retreat, and a co-educational living seminar were a few of the linking constituents this year that helped brew a competent council.

unit A fosters Korean child

"Service with a smile" should have been the motto of the girls from Earhart A. Thinking of gifts ranging from a Purdue sweatshirt to warm clothing, the girls sent provisions to their 14 year old Korean foster girl for Christmas. Still smiling and still serving, the girls were hostesses at many trade dinners and service projects. Earhart A contributed to the creation of a freshman board to represent the 329 frosh in the hall.

the quick change artists

Football wasn't limited to Ross Ade Stadium this year. Earhart B took the field to play Cary NW in a knock-down, drag-out touch football game. Changing from helmets to halos, the girls serenaded other dorms with Christmas carols and ended the Christmas season with a "pixie" party. Scholarship, interwoven with trade dinners and dances, dominated the remainder of the year. Time was alloted, however, to present a Mother's Day Skit at this annual affair.

Smile though your leg is breaking . . .

"1,2,3 heave," cried the captain of Earhart C's rope pulling team. The cry must not have been heard, since the team scored a tremendous defeat and landed smack in the mud. After scraping the mud off their grubbies, the girls exploited their artistic abilities at many sign painting parties only to find themselves again scraping off layers of paint. However, these girls weren't always diving into mud puddles and swimming in paint splattering exhibitions. They still found time to attend trade dinners and hostess their Old Master.

V2 . . . vivacious and venturesome

Hamburgers taste especially good at a cook out! Just ask the girls at Earhart D who threw their diets to the wind and had a rousing picnic with the Phi Sigs. Rousing parties didn't end with a cook out, however, as the girls had trade functions with Harrison and McCutcheon Halls and sign painting parties with many others. When time to study was finally found, it was sometimes quickly lost. Time just couldn't be spared from playing devilish tricks on "pixies" by these fun-loving girls.

Meredith governors

Planning, deciding, and legislating many ideas for a more effective dormitory system composed the core of the Governing Board's agenda this year. The nucleus of the Board's activities ranged from the assignment of Faculty Fellow seminars and the arrangement of Winter Whispers to the fulfillment of explosive trade parties, dinners, and picnics. This atomic energy, plus a little determination aided the active Board's rewarding, continuous service to Meredith Hall.

NW adorns unit

Big ten football pendants on the walls emphasized the theme of NW Meredith's "Football Fantasy Dance" with Cary Hall. Decorating again at Christmas, the girls competed in a door decorating contest with the hall waiters judging the varied displays and presenting the girls with a special holiday dinner. "Interior design" then came to a halt until warmer weather when the girls ornated themselves with baby oil and joined the other famous sunbathers of Meredith Hall.

novel notions dominate NE

Putting a new twist on trade functions, the girls of NE Meredith headed several trade dinners, with Mock P work carried on throughout the main course. Sea food never tasted better around the salt watery discussion of Florida. Mother's day also provided new entertainment when awards were given to the mothers with the most children. Innovative functions of fun led NE Meredith through a busy year.

SE . . . swingin' enthusiasts

"Maybe I should fix my hair like his."

"Swing your partners, promenade" was the password when the girls of SE Meredith squared their sets with Tarkington Hall at last fall's Barn Dance. The annual Halloween party later saw many weird, carved pumpkins and strange costumes. Picnics at the "Island," trade dinners with McCutcheon and Cary Halls, and much work on Mock P with Tarkington SE and Sherman and Stellar co-ops climaxed the year.

feminine track stars activate halls

Trying to match descriptions with faces, the girls of Meredith SW eagerly dashed from room to room. The girls really weren't trying to set a new record for the 50-yard dash, they were just using a new method of getting acquainted. Later, donning hats and brooms, the girls put on a Halloween skit, only to get the witches mixed up with the bats. Icy weather brought Winter Whispers, but the ice was broken by a spring picnic and dance with Owen Hall's spring fever struck men.

WRH GOVERNOR--Cheri Badenhop

Directing functions affecting the five halls, WRH Governing Board began Act I by focusing the spotlight on the traditional 6 A.M. orientation breakfast and a "Getting to Know You" dance with McCutcheon Hall. The Board, along with Wiley Hall, also set the stage for a Fall Festival, complete with such props as a root-beer garden and a variety of booths. Performing at a rapid pace throughout the year, the Board ended their program with a Faculty Fellow reception and dinner.

Duhme mourns

Did you ever wonder about the girls dressed in black at the Notre Dame game this fall? They were the women of Duhme Hall as they, along with the men of McCutcheon, staged a "wake party" for Notre Dame before the game. Trying to overcome their grief, the girls later threw a Casino party with the McCutcheon men and played their own football game with the men of Tarkington Hall. A Halloween party saw ghost costumes in place of black veils, and by Christmas the grief striken girls had ended their sorrow with a decorating party and dinner.

Shealy card sharks

With bounce and pep as newly initiated as the semester, the women of Shealy Hall put enthusiasm into the fall atmosphere by producing many pep rally signs with the men of Wiley Hall and the Sigma Pis. Never lacking drive the girls continued their pep rally mood with a pre-game kickoff party with Owen Hall that should have been named a "before, during, and after" party. A trade dinner with the Sherman House gang and a Fowler House trade dinner brought this year's social whirl to a close.

Warren entertains forces

"Warren Hall—home away from home for the men of Wiley." This could well have been Warren Hall's slogan this year, as the girls maintained a college answer to the U.S.O. and entertained the Wiley men with a fall picnic, a Little Brother and Sister program, and several old-fashioned baseball games. Still in troops, the couples accented the year by painting Christmas scenes on the windows and halls of all Lafayette hospitals.

"How to succeed in social life without really trying," could have been Wood Hall's motto this year. From hayrides to unexpected trade parties, the girls were caught in an eventful shower of trade functions. Not even taking time to raise their umbrellas, the girls composed a Mother's Day skit, a Little Sisters' weekend program, several pep rally signs with Owen and Tarkington Halls, and ended the year with a spring baseball game.

No, the New Cristy Minstrels weren't staying at Vawter Hall this year. The banjo strumming, the tambourine playing, and the folksongs all came from the women of Vawter Hall at their hootenany pizza party and their Little Sister folksinging party. The girls did store their guitars for awhile, however, to entertain underprivileged children at their annual Christmas party, but they later resumed their folksinging roles to serenade their mothers during University Sing weekend.

Under the name of Terry Courts, a replica of Jamestown, Virginia was seen on Purdue's campus this year. An innovation of 27 units of women in the Terry Courts domain caused a need for student government. Therefore, under the direction of Terry Council, the units wrote their own constitution, set up standards policies, and planned activities for the school year. There was one small difference between Terry Courts and Jamestown, however—no Indians joined the girls for dinner.

Budgets, diapers, sacrificing, and love—prerequisites for an econ., home ec., or ancient civilization course? No, these are just some of the characteristics found in many of the Married Students Apartments. Of course, there are many other characteristics—tension when both have an hourly to study for and the baby is crying; confusion when one has to work on the Chronicle, the other has a Married Student's Council meeting, and the in-laws drop in for a visit; and panic when the month's budget doesn't quite stretch. But there's one trait that's often overlooked by outsiders—the joy of having built-in comfort, consolation, and encouragement.

Sports,
A hollow shell
Filled by those
Who people its little world.
What drives them to this cage
Held up for all to see?
Is it glory,
The crowd's
Roar?

One must look deeper—
The shell is steel;
The cage floor,
Mud.
Even money is not enough.
It is soiled
Under the grinding heel
Of exhausting hours of practice.
It pales
Before the specter of defeat.

Why, then,
Strive?
The will to win,
The ache of the soul to surpass,
Always surpass
Holds the key.
What is life without goals?
A faint echo of reality.

Completion of the new six million dollar arena ended innumerable headaches and worries for the administrators of the sports program at Purdue. More than that, it marks what Mr. Guy Mackey hopes will be the beginning of a new era for sports at Purdue. This era would be distinguished by the improvement of all Purdue sports rather than just football. Indoor practice areas for baseball, track, and tennis have been provided, something that was never possible when the fieldhouse was the main facility. New facilities and increased scholarships provide the key to improvement.

a new flash - 52 pick-up

BLOCK P--C. Riggs, C. Jusko, J. Taliaferro, J. Regenold, S. Peck, J. Kinn, W. Skinner, D. Cunningham, N. Wainwright, L. Petkus, J. Newman.

Innovation characterized Block P this year. The Senior Board provided the flashers with new oilskin jackets that when worn formed the Block P design. Besides giving them better equipment, the board tried to make life easier for the freshmen, something not done too often at Purdue, by providing free cokes at the games and a chance to win prizes through a lottery. More important, however, were the changes made in the flashes, as the staff devised a psychedelic flash using metallic cards along with other moving designs. But the freshmen didn't stop there. They managed a few innovations of their own, including designing some new group participation games using shoes and an occasional set of bra and panties for equipment. Not satisfied, they devised their own grand finale for the season. Much to the dismay of the staff, the workers threw away their flash cards, even the metallic ones.

September 23, 1967 . . . a new year begins—the year after Bob Griese graduated. Last year was Purdue's big year: eight and two; the Rose Bowl; better yet, a win in the Rose Bowl. We tell ourselves this will be a building year, trying already to justify a mediocre season. Cries that we can't go to the Rose Bowl again so we will just have to win the Big Ten have a hollow ring. The game begins, then ends; we are 1-0. A new name is heard, Mike Phipps; maybe this won't be such a bad year after all, but next week is Notre Dame.

a new year, doubt turns to hope

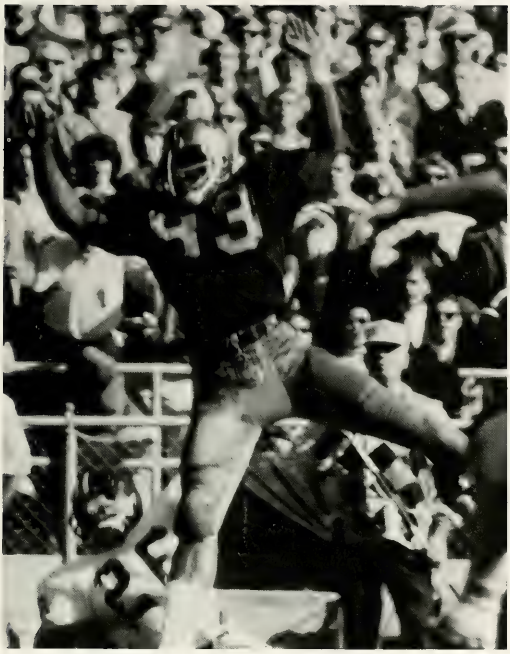
Phipps to Williams—the Irish couldn't stop this play as the boilermakers upset Notre Dame, 28-21.

over the Irish and on the way

The test. Phipps did well against Texas A and M but this is Notre Dame. The Irish are ranked Number One by both polls, and there is already talk of the national championship. What follows is described by many as the biggest upset of the young season. The final score, 28-21, speaks for itself. Notre Dame's running game was choked off, and Hanratty was forced to throw 63 passes. Phipps showed that last week was no mistake, but he shared the spotlight with Leroy Keyes who turned in the first of what was to be a long string of fantastic performances. Called off the bench to play both ways, he held Seymour to one reception. Leroy was every bit as good on offense, running well and catching nine passes. What was pessimism becomes wild optimism; we're Number One! Time will tell.



Marion Griffin stretches in vain for a Phipps pass.

The luck of the Irish runs out.

A new fear nags at Purdue: will we blow it like always? Northwestern gives everyone a scare; the team is down at the half but manages to move late in the game, winning 25-16. Northwestern was a surprise, but everyone knows Ohio State will be tough. Pre-season estimates make the Buckeyes our toughest competition in the Big Ten. Yet, against all expectations, the game quickly develops into a rout. Scoring stands at 35-0 when Coach Mollenkopf takes out the first team. The final score is 41-6; we can't be beat, or can we? Homecoming—Oregon State, who are they? We find out all too soon; they are the team chosen to burst the bubble. Playing poorly and plagued by mistakes, the team trips everytime it tries to take a step. Black disgust settles over the campus; it is a quiet homecoming.

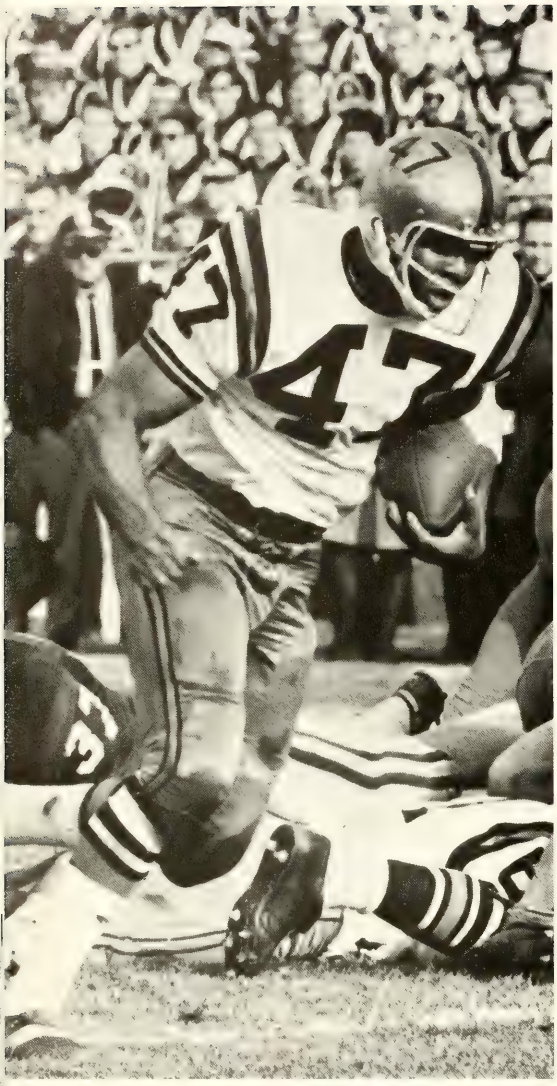
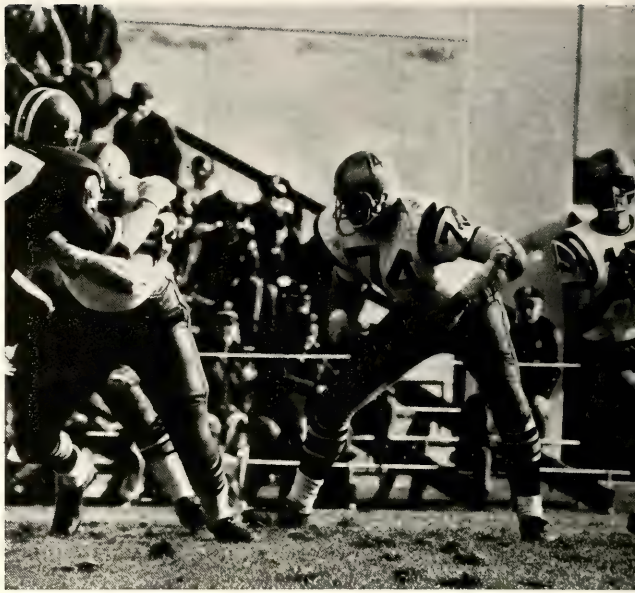
Phipps picks up three extra yards the hard way.

Time to pick ourselves back off the ground. The fall was bad, but the team gets back to the business of winning. Iowa is first on the list; they never have a chance against Purdue's top-rated offense. The Illini figure to be tougher—they are, but it doesn't matter. The game develops into a one man show starring Leroy Keyes. Leroy runs for three touchdowns, throws for a fourth, and clicks off 227 yards on the ground. Talk of the Heisman Trophy is heard everywhere. The game ends 42-9; can we score this well against Minnesota? The Gophers, the best defensive team in the Big Ten, have allowed only 44 points in seven starts. However, the best offense in the Big Ten comes out on top, adding another 41 to that total. Michigan State has special meaning for Purdue. Beaten by M.S.U. for the last three years, the team senses that this is their year. Duffy Daugherty's string is broken.



Williams ran well all day, except once.



Phipps looks downfield for a receiver, unfortunately he didn't find many.

goodbye

Only one more, the Old Oaken Bucket game. I.U. has somehow managed to compile an 8-1 record, and Purdue's first undisputed Big Ten Championship hinges on this game. Even so, everyone is sure of the outcome of the game; Indiana's wins have been miraculous enough to be discounted by most, even the pollsters. As the game progresses it almost seems like a replay of Oregon State; five fumbles, including one on the one yard line, spell disaster. Purdue wins in every statistical department, but the scoreboard tells a different story. This year's team was the best ever, the best in the Big Ten, and as good as any in the nation. For eight games we played the part, but for the other two, the team simply beat themselves. For all its talent the team was unable to get up for the big one, something that seems to have characterized Purdue football through the years. So another year ends, a typical year after all, ending with a groan of helpless frustration and a look to next year.

swimmers hit bottom

Structuring itself into a pyramid this year, swimming talent ranged from setting records to filling lanes. Alone at the top was Dan Milne, undefeated in dual meet competition in the 50-yard freestyle, the 100-yard freestyle and the 200-yard freestyle. Co-holder of the fastest collegiate time for the 100-yard free style this season with a time of 0:46.9, Milne was the team's only nationally prominent figure. Level two consisted of John Lee, Roy Lindstrom and Joe Ladouceur. The three accounted for most of the remaining points scored by the team. The third rank was peopled by lane fillers. More interested, in many cases, with getting an education than setting the swimming world on fire, they lacked the talent to match their competition.

The exhaustion of the last period shows on Terry Zaccarino's face.

In this era of specialization, team depth can often be effectively measured by the number of physical education majors on the squad; this year's wrestling team had none. Coupled with a lack of strength, no depth means a gray season in anyone's language. Unable to cover injuries involving the teams's best two men, the wrestling squad posted a two and eighteen dual meet record. Because of these injuries, several members were forced to wrestle above their weight class. The heavyweight, in reality a 176 pounder, was often outweighed by fifty to sixty pounds. Head Coach Reeck looks to a winning freshman squad and two transfers for help next year. He will even have a phys ed major on the team.

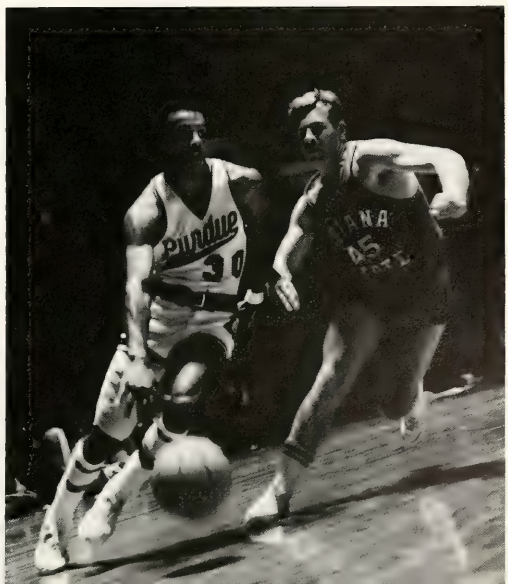
Herman Gilliam, along with Mount and Keller, formed this year's big three.

Mount eyes the opposition and the basket.

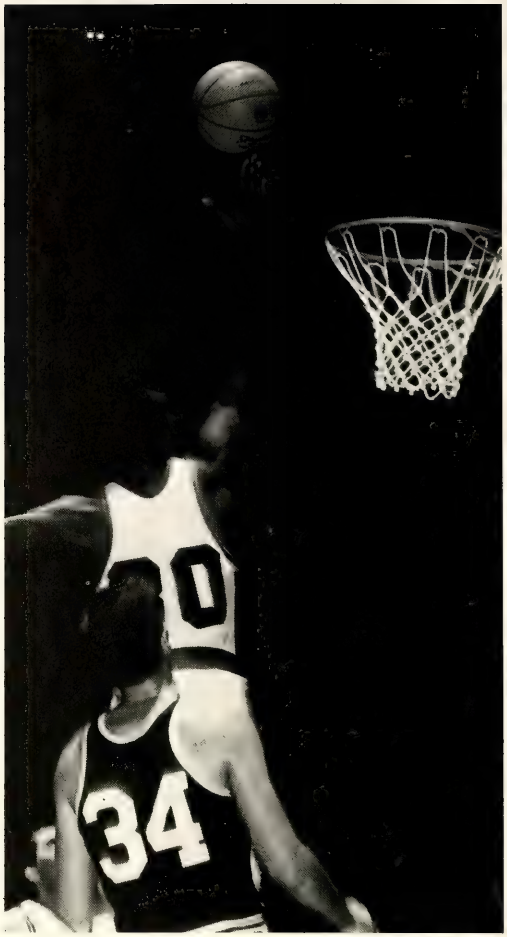
UCLA a narrow miss--what of the season?

A scenery change accompanies the start of the 1968 basketball season with the dedication of the new arena. The new year is full of promise; the Big Ten Coaches pick Purdue to win the conference, the writers pick Indiana. UCLA, national champions, undefeated in 34 games, complete with Lew Alcindor, provide the competition. The Walter Mittys among us dream of a spectacular upset, and the dream comes within two points of becoming a reality. A twenty-five foot jump shot with two seconds showing spells the difference. Even so, the sell-out crowd of 14,123 is optimistic. Much of this optimism evaporates with a sluggish loss to Washington; officiating definitely hurt the team's chances as blocking suddenly becomes charging. The loss is evened up the next night, though, as the Boilermakers show their considerable though, as the Boilermakers show considerable speed and work through Washington's defense for an easy 84-77 win. Mount and Keller are 1-2 in scoring, a pattern to be repeated many times during the coming season.

Purdue's quickness personified by Gilliam's driving lay-ups.



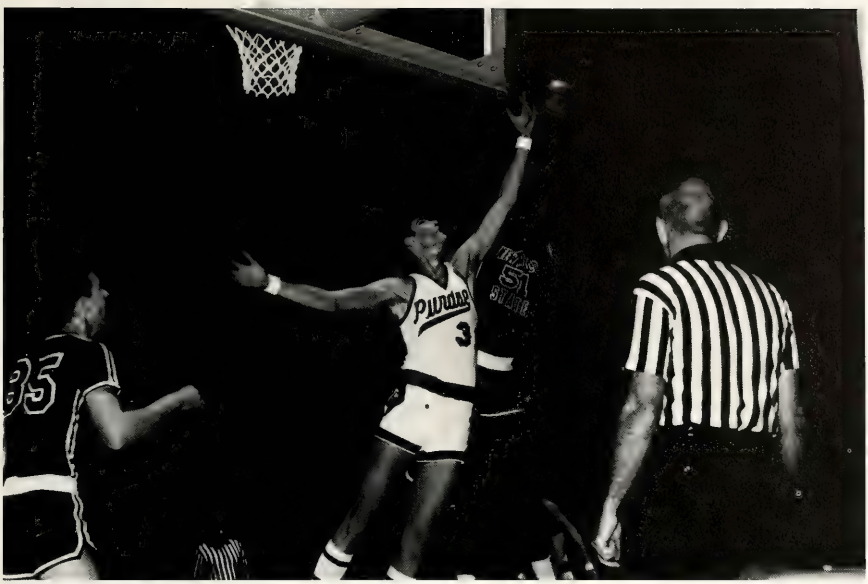
Tyrone Bedford double checks his reverse lay-up.



Herman Gilliam leads a well-balanced attack.

a streak starts, sputters

Back home again Purdue meets Ohio U. before another sellout. A half-time score of 32-31 reflects the sloppy Boilermaker play and the Bobcat's inability to get inside Purdue's zone. But the fast break engineered by Gilliam in the second half spells the difference in a 12 point win. Another slow start characterizes the Tulane game, but an even quicker recovery results in a 107-92 win. The win marks the seventh highest point production ever by a Boilermaker team, but, at the same time, signals the end of a four game winning streak. Successive losses to Butler and New Mexico State have the same ring as we are outrebounded and generally outplayed. To add to our miseries Roger Blalock is lost for the rest of the season with a broken leg. A two point win over Miami of Ohio raises hopes, but the Big Ten opener with Ohio State spells defeat again as more bad play coupled with a hot hand for the opposition is more than we can handle. Suddenly the Big Ten Crown seems a long way off.



Jerry Johnson, the one that got away.

The soft touch of Rick Mount fell hard on the opposition.

the road: dangerous ground

The hot-cold Boilermakers live up to their reputation against Wisconsin. Ohio State was cold; the Badgers are treated to a scorching. Now comes, for many, the sweetest game of the season; Indiana is thoroughly outplayed. Purdue hands I.U. their worst defeat by a Boilermaker team since 1934, as not a single I.U. man manages to get into double figures. Revenge is all it is cracked up to be, but the road jinx catches us before we have a chance to savor it. Northwestern plays havoc with Purdue's zone, winning 82-74. Just as the road has been harsh, the new arena has been kind. Northern Michigan has this truism pounded into them 105-79. Northwestern is the next pupil, and they too learn their lesson well. The Wildcats play a completely different team and find the new one a lot harder to swallow. True to form, though, we lose to Iowa on the road; mistakes kill the team. Mount fouls out, and Keller is forced to sit out the last seven and a half minutes of the first half after collecting three quick fouls. A breather at home in the form of a walk-away from Minnesota, and we head back into the valley of death.

The long and the short: Chuck Bavis and Bernie Conrad.

Purdue's rebounding strength, Blalock and Gilliam.

Purdue finally manages to escape defeat on the road but the way the Boilermakers beat Illinois, from the foul line cannot be counted on while away from home. Wins at home over Iowa and Ohio State push Purdue to a tie for first place in the Big Ten race and bring our winning streak to four over Big Ten teams. This could be the year; the next games are against ninth place Michigan and a Wisconsin team that was a twenty point loser ten games ago. However, our road record is terrible and both games are away, cause for doubt. The doubt surfaces and our hopes are buried until next year as we lose both games badly and are relegated to third place with no chance for the title. Michigan State presents no problem at home. Now, for another go around with I.U. Indiana's football team went from last to first in the conference, if we win this game their basketball team will do the reverse. A slow, frustrating game finally turns our way in the final minutes for a 68-64 win. The season is over, a season that seems a replay of football. Although both teams did extremely well, better than in many previous years they fell a bit short, in the final analysis, of their goal and their capabilities.

personnel scarce; not so competition

Conquest, finishing his leg of the mile relay: "Stop, my thumb is stuck!"

Has Purdue Track improved since last year? Dave Rankin, head coach, thinks so. He defines this year's team as one which consists of four or five successful competitors, an improvement over recent years. The basic reason for the past deterioration of Purdue Track is difficult to pin point, but a careful study shows that the major factor is the lack of trackmen and Boilermaker support. Purdue Track is a confined sport with a limited number of scholarships; a college freshman can find financial conditions more favorable at other schools.

team hobbled by lack of funds

Wisconsin-3, Northwestern-3, Purdue-1; lack of personnel cripples the team.

Coach Dave Rankin remarked that potential was reached in '67 with three new records being set. Doug Conquest ran his best time of the season, a 1:53 half-mile, to list a new 880 record for Purdue. Pole vaulter Bob Raftis equaled his record 15′ vault and narrowly missed 15′6″ in the triangular meet with Wisconsin and Northwestern. Bruce Donneker, a double winner, has a record triple jump distance of 46′7¾″ and a long jump best this season of 22′1½″. The freshmen team is Purdue's finest group of competitors ever accordng to Coach Rankin.

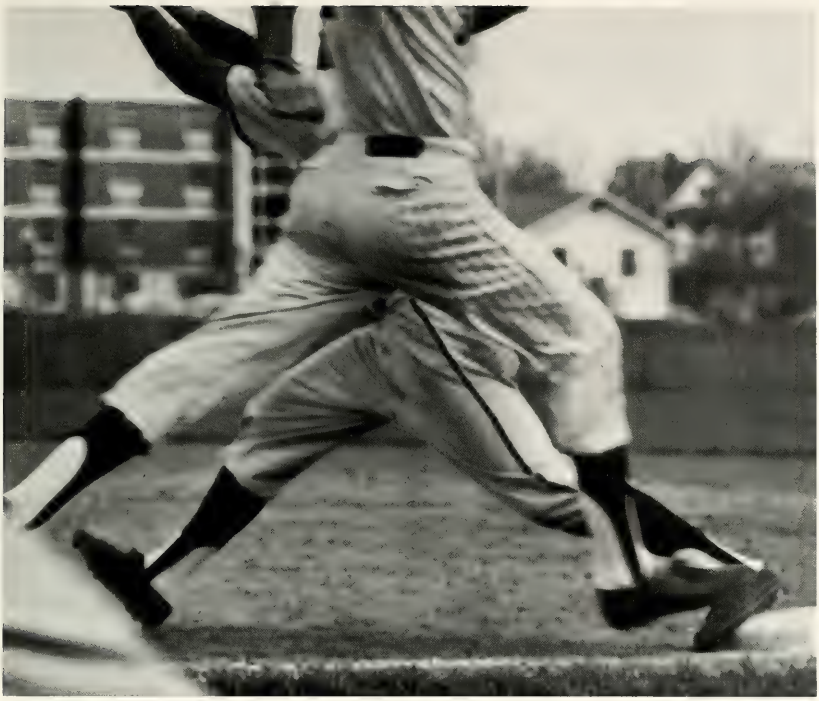
seventh place--an improvement

Talking to head coach Joe Sexson, one detects a note of careful optimism as the coach tells of his team pulling from ninth to seventh in the Big Ten last year. One might ask, "What's so good about a seventh place finish?" The Big Ten is one of the strongest leagues in the nation with the top teams made up entirely of scholarship players. With this kind of material, the Big Ten Champ has won the NCAA College World Series six of the last twelve years. Financial aid, in view of the competition, becomes a very important matter. A proposed summer league involving all the Big Ten teams would help tremendously. During a summer schedule the team would play in Columbian Park in Lafayette and charge admission, money towards a few more scholarships.



The long stretch.

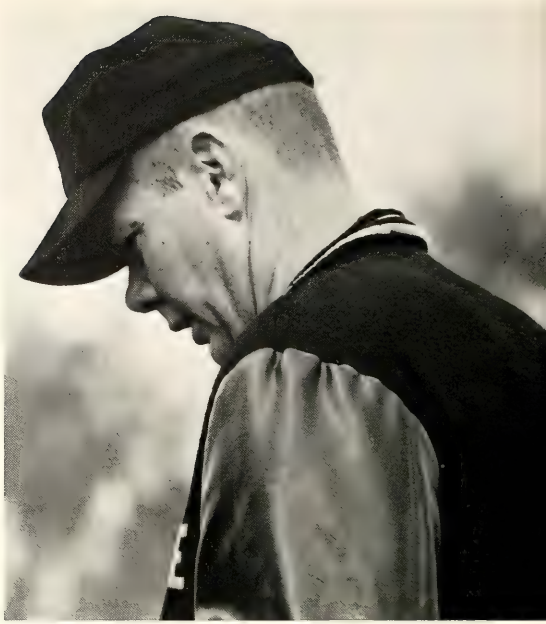
Lack of hitting and poor depth on the pitching staff are the major reasons for the team's seventh place finish in the Big Ten. The team batted .2415 for the season; the conference leader in this department, Michigan, batted .294. The team's pitching staff ranked seventh in the Big Ten with an earned run average of 3.48. There were, however, bright spots in both departments. Hank Suerth led the team's hitters with a .353 average, good enough to rank him sixth in the Big Ten. According to Coach Sexson the man on the pitching staff who deserves the most credit is Steve Krull; his 1.25 earned run average was good enough for fifth place in the Big Ten rankings. However, these fine individual performances were not enough when it came time to play scholarship teams like Ohio State and Minnesota.



Head Coach Joe Sexson.

Hitting was definately not the team's forte, another ground ball.

Think about it. Out of every ten men who try out for Crew, only three are good enough—good enough to run one mile to practice every day, seven days a week; to row sixty miles a week once they get there; to pay dues and assessments; and to finance their own transportation to away meets, as Crew is considered a club rather than a varsity sport—to participate in one of today's most grueling collegiate sports. This is a crewman. Led by national rowing champion John Bernfield, the Crew Team finished its most successful season beating both Alabama and Kansas State. Placing third in the Dad-Vail Regatta, they lost by 3.6 seconds to Marietta, the small college national champion. Think about it.

American style

Characterized by an increase in raw talent and, more specifically, more American talent, this year's Soccer team is a product of what may very well be the start of a new era for this sport at Purdue. In the past never more than one or two Americans were on the starting squad; this year there were four. With an American team there are less communications problems but, more importantly, the style is closer to that of the teams Purdue faces, making less adjustment necessary. Perhaps the most important win of the season was over Indiana, 2-1. The Hoosiers were unbeaten at home in 35 games, but the defense held them to just one goal in breaking the string. Although the team finished with a 3-4-1 record, it was, in the estimation of its coaches, the best ever fielded at Purdue.

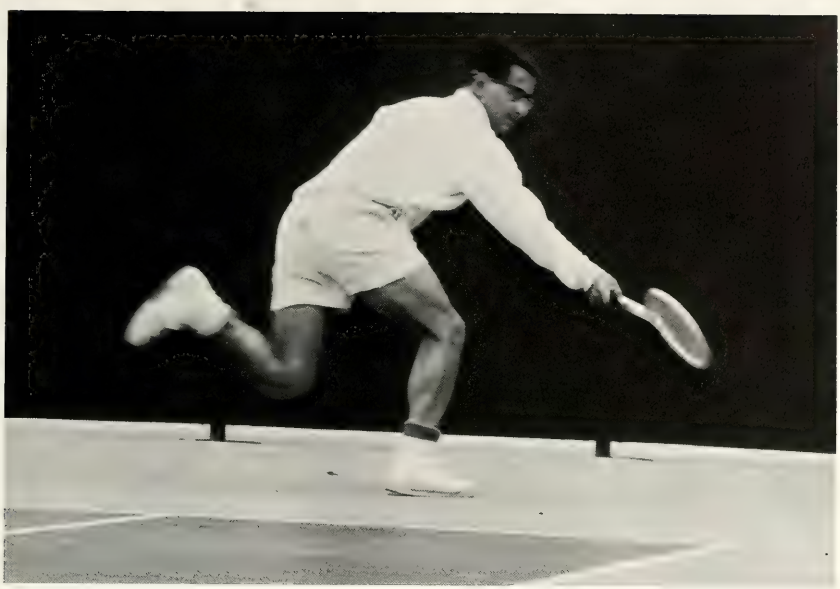
Coach Ed Eicholtz reviewed the 1967 tennis season thoughtfully. Four wins . . . sixteen losses . . . Purdue tenth in the Big Ten for the last three years . . . no financial aid. The scholarship factor, even more so than with the other smaller sports, hurt tennis. Coach Eicholtz had to play men at levels above their potential, men that could have made a meaningful contribution playing at a lower level. The team's number one man, Phil Wade, played consistently good tennis; but his defensive game, suited more for the number two or three spot, was not effective where the offensive game is stressed.



Poetry in motion, but a miss all the same.

Unique among the minor sports at Purdue, Golf finished with a winning season. Taking the Big Ten Conference Tournament by eight strokes and placing fourth in the NCAA Tournament put Purdue in a very strong position nationally for 1967. Besides winning the Conference Tournament, the Boilermakers compiled the best regular season record in the Big Ten with a mark of 55 and 7. Only one of these losses came at the hands of a Big Ten opponent.

Voinoff depends on seniors

The team, rated as the best in the Big Ten, owes its success to its senior members. Head Coach Sam Voinoff ranks seniors Steve Mayhew, Jim Duffy, and Dave Schumaker as his three best men. Steve Mayhew deserves special recognition as the holder of the Big Ten individual title for 1967. Winning the tournament with a 72-hole score of 298, Steve's score was four strokes better than the second place finisher. Jim Duffy finished third in the individual tournament standings; Don Klenk and Dave Schumaker ended in a tie for tenth.

A free hour spent unwinding on the handball court.

A favorite expression at Purdue, especially popular among those with less than a 4.0, goes something like: "There is more to a college education than just books." Although it is usually heard as an excuse for poor grades, the phrase applies to the activities in general and, in this case, physical activities. Since everyone doesn't have the time, ability, or desire to participate in the physical activity of varsity athletics, the school has devised the Intramural program, geared for the restless student. He can get his physical activity in a dozen different ways at the Co-Rec. And, if he is really dedicated to the proposition of blowing grades, the IM program at least gives him the opportunity to get into good shape while he's doing it.

A study in concentration.

Away from the hair rollers and perfume bottles a tense game of basketball is being played. Somewhere a skirt is discarded in a green locker; a volleyball rolls out of bounds and a cry is heard. This is the place where a girl doesn't have to wear make-up, the paradise where a girl can relax and not worry about looking nice for a guy. This is WRA.

Closing

Tomorrow
Is dawning,
And there is much to do.
I am impetuous,
Tripping over my illusions,
But I will learn to walk.
Success goads me,
Yet I have growing to do
Before I am Ready.

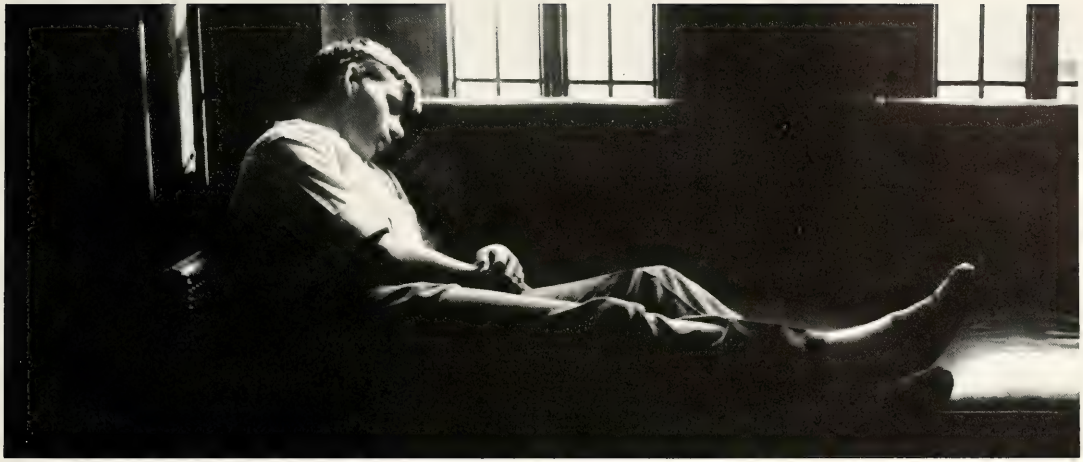
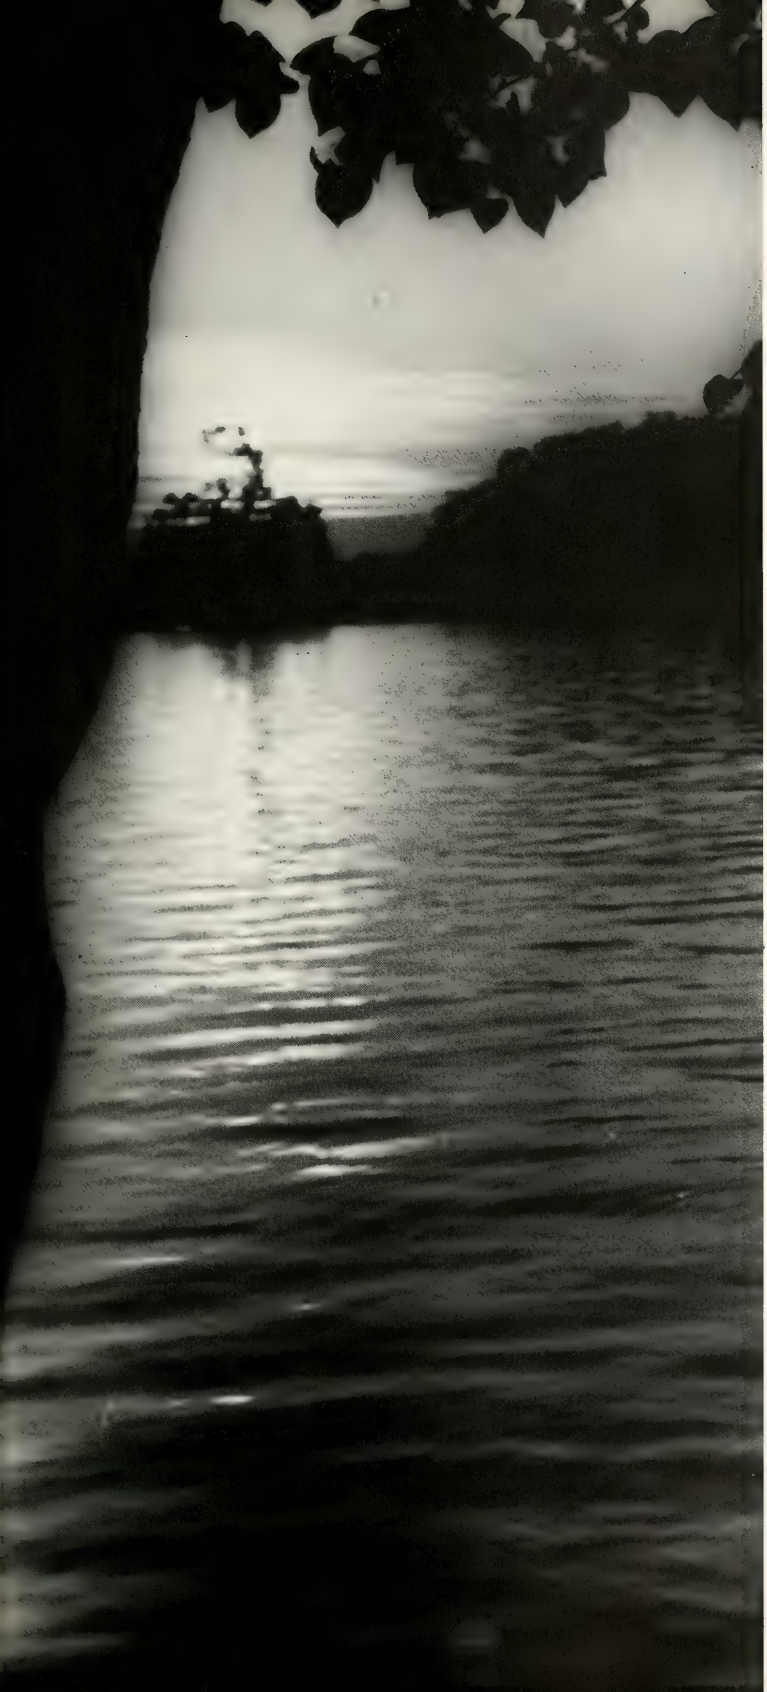
LINK-BELT



Ideas are my only tool,
And the will to use them
Hinges on my optimism.
God help me,
If I ever lose it
Because of fear of failure.



The bewilderment of youth
Disappears on wings of love.
Kindle a spark
And it flames.
Take my heart and the joy
Of you
Explodes in me.
Here I will trust—
It is Useless to wonder,
For I must let myself go
Forever
If I am to know what life is like.

Forgotten are things
That will never be.
Now I must go . . .
Having only wisdom to clear the way,
Relishing today for the Promised tomorrow—
Brandishing truth as a weapon,
With the faith
That kindness will unlock
Any door
And the surprises
Within.

Printing of the 1968 DEBRIS was done by Paragon Press, Montgomery, Alabama; a division of Herff Jones, Inc., Indianapolis. Opening and closing sections used 14 point Spartan Light type. The remainder of the book's body copy is 10 point Caledonia, with captions and idents of 8 point Caledonia. Heads are 30 point Garamond. The paper used is Warren's 80 lb. velvet enamel dull. The cover was produced by S. K. Smith Co. of Chicago, and the majority of the group photos were taken by the University Photographic Service.

The office is empty; the typewriters are quiet; the darkroom is deserted. The 1968 Debris has gone to press. Last August just a page plan and a mass of ideas, volume 81 is now 592 pages, 37 signatures, and over 2500 pictures. Months of long hours, late nights, missed deadlines, and blown pictures are over. Yet behind as we were, we somehow managed to get this debris printed.

So here it is for your judgement, the 1968 Debris. Like it or hate it as you see fit, but remember Purdue is 18,099 things to 18,099 students. We have attempted in 592 pages to capture the past year for these students as they lived, learned, laughed, and loved. If we haven't quite presented Purdue the way you see, it don't be too hard on us.

I guess thanks should first go to Janie and Jim for their diligent work in the business office. This year we were without the added feature of a Rose Bowl section, but you still managed to sell an incredible 7200 books. For the superior photography in the book, I must thank Gary. He and his staff shot over 20,000 pictures to achieve this high quality. Thanks, too, for your patience and frequent all-nighters at deadline time. Ann, you were truly the workhorse of the staff. Not only were you responsible for both opening and closing, but you also carried the added load of copy editor. Never again! Tom, you were great. With two weeks to go and over 180 pages to draw you never voiced a complaint. And thanks Cathy for keeping both office and workers in line. Lastly there is Barb, most loyal worker and cohort. Can we ever forget those late runs to the post office? And all those missed deadlines, did we ever think we really wouldn't make it? It sure looked bleak at times, didn't it? Finally, thanks should go to Mr. Gillispie, our advisor; Mr. Morrissey, our financial aid; Jack Bundy of S.K. Smith Co; and Frank Woschitz of Paragon without whom this book would be literally nothing!

I guess there's nothing left to say except good luck to the 1969 staff. The past year will probably be the most memorable year of my life, and I regret to see it go. Good-bye and good luck!
